LENNOX COUNTY FAIR

After three years of wet weather, Lennox Fair had splendid weather for its annual show this year. The exhibits were fully up to other years and in Ladies work the display was very large, and certainly a credit to the ladies who were exhibitors. A new poultry house has been built on the grounds and as a result the poultry entries were very much above former years.

The baby show and band concert drew a good crowd, packing the palace almost to capacity with a merry crowd all anxious to see that most interesting of all exhibits, the babies. The Napanee band and the Scotch musicians and dancers enlivened the proceedings wonderfully.

PATRIOTIC FUND MEETING

The committee appointed at the general meeting of citizens to raise a fund to support the dependents of those fighting the battles of the Empire at the front, or doing their duty at the various places requiring their services, is now fully organized and the raising of funds will be actively taken up at once. Relief will be given to all those who need it, who are directly or indirectly affected by the war. In this county we are fortunate that a large amount of relief may not be necessary and therefore we should contribute to the support of the Dominion Fund, which will take care of all those in places where the necessary amount cannot be raised locally or in places where it is manifestly impossible to form relief committees.

This is a Dominion wide movement and every corner of the broad Dominion must be covered either by the local committees or by the central committee.

Following we give a report of the various meetings held.

A meeting of the Provisional Committee, appointed at the citizens meeting of Aug. 31st, was held on Sept. 4th, Mayor Alexander presiding.

The following resolution was passed as follows:

"That a permanent committee of citizens be formed to be known as the Nanabee Patriotic Fund Committee, for the purpose of collecting and administering a fund to be used to relieve any distress in our town or county, attributable directly or indirectly to the war, and if deemed advisable by said committee to augment any similar fund or funds in other parts of Canada.

That your committee suggest that the permanent committee be composed of the following gentlemen: A. Alexander, S. C. Denison, Rev. S. Sellery, M. C. Bogart, F. W. Vandusen, Rev. D. Howard, Judge Madden, J. M. Thompson, Rev. W. E. Kidd, W. J. Deller, W. H. Boyle, Rev. Father O'Connor, Patrick Gleeson, Rev. C. E. Cragg, Chas. D. Eyvel, G. W. Gibbard.

That all details for the collection and administration of said fund be left with said permanent committee.

That said committee be requested to continue to act so long as necessity for their work exists and that they shall have power if they so desire, to add to their numbers.

CITIZENS MEETING SEPTE. 10th.
The report of the committee was read and adopted.

Committee meeting, Sept. 10th—His Honor Judge Madden, was elect- ed chairman.

Mr. W. J. Doller was elected secre- tary treasurer.

On motion, it was resolved that after a publicity campaign in respect to the objects of the committee has been conducted and after the lecture to be given by Frank Yeigh, that teams be sent out to canvas for sub- scriptions.

Meeting of Committee, Sept. 11th—At this meeting the name of the com- mittee was changed to the Lennox and Addington Patriotic Fund Com- mittee.

The committee aims to raise $8000. The Reeves, Deputy Reeves and Clerks of the various Municipalities were appointed members of the com- mittee.

Meeting, Wednesday, Sept. 11th—At this meeting the following resolutions were passed:

That the Central Finance Commit- tee be composed of the following gentlemen: Rev. W. E. Kidd, G. W. Gibbard, W. A. Grange, M. C. Bogart, P. Gleeson, R. W. Longmore, Jas. Aylsworth, with power to arrange for raising contributions in support of the fund and determining how they shall be payable and to deposit all monies in a Chartered Bank or banks in Napanee, to the credit of the fund and to be drawn therefrom on order of the Relief Committee.

That the Reeves, deputy Reeves and clerks of each of the municipalities respectively, with the exception of the town of Napanee, be sub-relief committees to act, in conjunction with the Central relief committee in in- vestigating claims for aid and de- livering the amount of assistance which in each case may reasonably be given.

That the Central Relief Committee be composed of the following gen- tlemen: The Warden of the County, The Mayor of Napanee, Rev. Dr. Howard, Rev. S. Sellery, F. W. Van- dusen, James Thompson, F. Sexsmith. Messrs. E. R. Checkley and W. F. Hall were appointed auditors of the fund.

Subscription lists have been opened and the names of all contributors will be published in the local papers, without the amounts given being stat- ed. The lists will also be open for the inspection of any interested per- sons who may wish to verify the amount of their subscription. At the close of the fund the names and the amounts of the subscriptions will probably be published.

The amount of any citizens sub- scription to this fund should not be a subject of comment or criticism by any person. It is a matter solely for any citizen to think out for him- self and give as much to this great patriotic movement as he feels he is able. The subscription of twenty-five cents from a poor man should be as welcome as the larger sums from those more able to pay. Let every man give his share, be it large or small.

Seventeen Days' Battle F
Crushed Chief Army.

One Hundred and Eighty Thousand Prisoners and Nearly Fifty Hundred Guns Complete Record of Russian Success — German Army Defeated at Mlawa Retreat From Russian Poland.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—A despatch from the Central News from Rome says telegraphic advices received from Petrograd are to the effect that the seventeen-days' battle of the Russians against the Austro-German forces ended with the following result:

Prisoners taken, 180,000; guns captured, 450; fortress artillery captured, pieces, 1,000; transport wagons taken, 4,000; aeroplanes captured, 7.

The Russian Embassy in Rome, according to the correspondent of the Central News, says that the German army commanded by Gen. Von Hindenburg has been defeated near Mlawa, Russian Poland, and that the Germans are evacuating Poland with a loss of 50,000 men. The Ambassador adds that the Russians have resumed the offensive in Prussia, and have commenced to lay siege to Koenigsberg.

A despatch to the Central News from Copenhagen says Berlin messages received in Copenhagen admit that the chief Austrian army has suffered an absolute defeat, but claim is retiring in good order.

"Gen. Von Auffenberg's army," the correspondent continues, "is said to be in a dangerous position, being cut off from the main army. The Austrians have had terrible losses."

Big Captures by Russians.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—The following official communication was issued last night:

"On the Austrian front the Russian troops are crossing the Silesian river. On taking position near Raskus the Russian troops captured 30 cannon and 8,000 prisoners, also enormous stores of war mater and provisions."

"The results of the pursuit of the enemy in that territory are still unknown."

"In the marshes of Belgoraion the Russians found some more Austrian batteries sunk in the mud, abandoned during retreat."

"The general army, while repulsing the last desperate Austrian attack, captured the moment our troops took the offensive a great number of prisoners and guns, the total number of which has not as yet been determined."

"Gen. Brusiloff declares that his troops gave proof of great energy, determination and bravery. The commanders of the corps, he says, led their units with imperturbable composure, snatching victory from the enemy on more than one occasion at critical moments."

"Gen. Brusiloff particularly commends the activity of the Bulgarian general, Radko Dimitrieff, in the fighting."

"On the right bank of the Dniester river the Austrians have been thrown back on Dorogobuzh, 55 miles east of Smolensk."

"Czernowits, capital and chief town of the Crownland of Bukowina and all the neighboring regions have been occupied by the Russian army without resistance."

BELGIUM DREW ENEMY.

She Occupied Two Army Corps Badly Needed In France.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Evidence accumulates that the German commander-in-chief has been compelled to weaken his force in France owing both to the Russian menace on the east and to Belgian attacks from Antwerp.

Petrograd despatches speak of ten German field corps transported to the east, and at least one German division has been fighting with the Austrians in the Lublin government.

A despatch from The London Chronicle's Amsterdam correspondent says: The Belgian army, which last week conducted a four-days' vigorous offensive in the triangle of Brussels, Malines and Louvain, have now retired under the shelter of the Antwerp forts with the satisfaction of knowing they have not only dealt a heavy blow in their own defence, but have undoubtedly contributed to the defeat of the German right in France. Their sudden sally compelled the Germans to concentrate all their available forces in Belgium and actually to recall to Brussels their third and ninth army corps, which had been sent southwest, presumably to reinforce the Germans in north France. In addition the Germans had to put in the field against the Belgians, Landwehr and Landsturm regiments from the south of Brussels, and 15,000 sailors and marines are also reported to be engaged.

Although the Belgians have again fallen back under cover of the Antwerp forts they keep in close touch with the Germans, who maintain a threatening attitude, and continue to occupy the attention of a great body of troops which the enemy would much like to send to France.

Despatches received here from Antwerp relate that the fighting by the Belgian forces which went out from Antwerp last Friday lasted for three days, day and night. There was a heavy engagement among the ruins of Louvain, the Belgians penetrating twice to the centre of the city. Yesterday the Belgians delivered a fierce cavalry attack on the Germans at Louvain.

"On the right bank of the Dnieper river the Austrians have been thrown back on Dorogobuzh, 55 miles east of Smolensk.

"Czernowits, capital and chief town of the Crownland of Bukowina and all the neighboring regions have been occupied by the Russian arm without resistance."

A semi-official communication states the slowness of the Russian operations in East Prussia are not quieting. The fighting there has importance in such a gigantic struggle.

An energetic attack has begun in the district of Tchestokhov, where the Russians took a strong German position by storm on Saturday.

A Series of Massacres.

ROME, Sept. 15.—A despatch from the Austrian Tyrol says that thirty Italians have returned wounded from Galicia, and report the fighting there as a series of massacres. They declare nearly 100,000 wounded have been conveyed to Vienna, Budapest, Prague and elsewhere. More than 8,000 beds are occupied by wounded in Vienna alone.

The knowledge of the Russian that the Italians and the Slavs in the Austrian army are deliberately fired low, is believed to account for a large proportion of wounded.

Austria has lost practically half her army.

Machine Guns In Trees.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—In a despatch from Copenhagen the correspondent of The Evening News quotes the correspondent of the Berlingskeuben who telegraphs from Austrian headquarters, as follows:—

"The Russians have done great execution with machine guns mounted in trees. Austrian doctors declare that they are unable to discover evidence that the Russians are using expanding bullets. The Russian fantry men are said to fire high owing to the excessive depth of the trenches."

Japanese Admiral Goes To Prison.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Vice Admiral Kolchi Fujii was sentenced yesterday to serve a term of four years and months in prison following his conviction on charges of bribery in connection with the naval corruption scandal of last year. He was formerly Japanese naval attaché at Berlin. He was tried before a court-mart last February on the charge that he received illicit commissions for influencing the allotment of Admiral's contracts in favor of a German firm.

Moors Were Defeated.

MADRID, Sept. 15.—It is officially announced that a Spanish column commanded by Gen. Silvertre, inflicted a severe defeat, with heavy loss, upon a force of Moors at Abd-el-Himan. The Spaniards lost one officer and four soldiers killed and two officers and 25 men wounded. Communications between Larache, Tangier and Tatan are now assured.

AIRMEN SEES FLIGHT

German Movement More Than Retreat, Says Aviator.

Frenchman Describes Northerly and Northeasterly March of Kaiser's Troops Moving With Great Rapidity to Escape Their Pursuers—Many Were Straggling Across the Frontier.

PARIS, Sept. 15.—The best view of the retreating German army was obtained by a French military aviator who, ascending from a point near Vitry-le-Francois, flew northward across the Rheims, down to the region of Verdun and back again in a zigzag course to a spot near Soissons. He saw the German hosts not merely in retreat, but in flight, and in some places in disorderly flight.

It was a wonderful sight to look down upon those tens and hundreds of thousands of moving men, the long grey columns of the Kaiser's picked troops, some marching in northerly, others in northeasterly directions, and all moving with a tremendous rapidity which was eloquent of their desire to place themselves beyond reach of the allied armies, who were harassing them every step of the way. The retreat was not confined to the highways, but many German soldiers were running across fields, jumping over fences, crawling through hedges and wending their way through woods without any semblance of order or discipline.

These men doubtless belonged to the regiment which, badly cut up in the fierce fighting which preceded the general retreat, was deprived of the majority of its officers and non-commissioned officers. They were a mere rabble of fugitives, many without rifles, having abandoned their weapons in the haste to escape the vengeance of French and British pursuers. These scenes of almost panic-stricken flight were witnessed at the end of a week's hard fighting.

The invading army seems to have its Moscow, and its Waterloo cannot now be long delayed. The German right has been shattered to atoms. It is simply a fugitive mob, which flies night and day, hoping to escape or shake off the relentless pursuer, who has for days been hunting it down. The vanguard of the fleeing Teutonic host has now recrossed the Belgian frontier.

Robert Bartlett yesterday. In addition to the names of the rescued announced in Sunday night's Washington despatch the dead and missing are:

the Italians have returned wounded from Galicia, and report the fighting there as a series of massacres.
They declare nearly 100,000 wounded have been conveyed to Vienna,
Lapast, Prague and elsewhere.
More than 8,000 beds are occupied wounded in Vienna alone.
The knowledge of the Russians, that the Italians and the Slavs in the Austrian army are deliberately firing at the Italians, is believed to account for the large proportion of wounded.
Austria has lost practically half of its army.

Machine Guns in Trees.
LONDON, Sept. 15. — In a despatch from Copenhagen the correspondent of The Evening News quotes the correspondent of the Berlingskeubends, in telegrams from Austrian headquarters, as follows:—
The Russians have done great execution with machine guns mounted in trees. Austrian doctors declare that they are unable to discover any evidence that the Russians are using poisoning bullets. The Russian infantry men are said to fire high over the heads of the enemy to the excessive depth of their trenches."

Japanese Admiral Goes to Prison.
LONDON, Sept. 15. — Vice Admiral Chichibu was sentenced yesterday to serve a term of four years and six months in prison following his conviction on charges of bribery in connection with the naval corruption scandal of last year. He was formerly Japanese naval attaché at Berlin.
He was tried before a court-martial in February on the charge that he had received illicit commissions for influencing the allotment of Admiralty contracts in favor of a German firm.

Moors Were Defeated.
LADRID, Sept. 15. — It is officially announced that a Spanish column, commanded by Gen. Silvestre, inflicted a severe defeat, with heavy losses, on a force of Moors at Abd-el-Ho-
u. The Spaniards lost one officer and four soldiers killed and two officers and 25 men wounded. Communications between Larache, Tanger and Tatan are now assured.

Health is the greatest gift a municipality can bestow upon its people.

dead and missing are:

Dead—George S. Mattoch, geologist, son of Dr. A. E. Malloch, 28 Duke street, Hamilton, Ont., and formerly employed in the geological survey,
Ottawa; Marne Mamen, Christiania,
Norway, assistant topographer; Geo.
Bredy, seaman of Esquimaux, B.C.
The missing, whom Government officials believe to be dead are: Henry Beuchat, of Paris, France, anthropologist and world famous scientist who had considerable experience in Arctic explorations.

Dr. Allister Forbes McKay, of Edinburgh, Scotland, the surgeon of the expedition, who accompanied Sir Ernest Shackleton in his dash to the south pole a few years ago.

James Murray, of Hampshire, England, oceanographer and well-known scientist, who was also a member of the Shackleton expedition.

Alex. Anderson, first officer; Chas.
Barker, second officer; John Brady, seaman; A. King, seaman, and T. S.
Morris, seaman.

The last five joined the expedition
at Esquimaux and their place of residence is not known by the Department.

The official message is from Capt.
Bartlett on the U. S. revenue cutter Bear, and contains the names of the eight rescued men as announced on Monday night.

MORE CAVALRY WANTED.

Canada Will Add Eleven Hundred Troopers To Contingent.

VALCARTIER CAMP, Que., Sept. 15.—The Canadian Government, after communicating with the War Office, has decided to increase the first Canadian expeditionary force by adding two complete cavalry regiments of 575 men and 27 officers each. The regiments to go will be the Strathcona Horse and the Royal Canadian Dragoons. Both regiments are of the permanent force, but at present they number only about 300 men in each regiment. They will be at once recruited up to the full war strength of 602 officers and men. They will be in addition to the two cavalry squadrons already assembled at Valcartier.

The British War Office has intimated that further cavalry troops from Canada will be welcomed, and the men of both regiments here are eager to go. The decision of the Government to send them means that practically the whole of the permanent force in Canada will go abroad, either for service in France and Belgium, or doing temporary garrison duty in Bermuda, as in the case of the Royal Canadian Regiment, which left Halifax some days ago.

To Receive Delegation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Secretary of State Bryan announced yesterday afternoon that President Wilson will receive the commissioners appointed by King Albert of Belgium to lodge protest with the United States against German atrocities, this afternoon.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

"Our troops have been re-entered Amiens, abandoned by the German forces."

"The enemy appears to be making a stand on a prepared front along the River Aisne."

"On the centre, similarly, it would seem as if the enemy intends to resist on the heights to the northwest, and to the north of Rheims. In the region between Argonne and the Meuse he continues to retire."

"On our right wing, in the Woivre district, we have succeeded in relieving the fort of Troyon, which has been stubbornly attacked time and time again during the last few days.
(Troyon is 12 miles south-southeast of Verdun.)"

"In Lorraine our pursuing detachments are keeping, as everywhere else, in touch with the Germans."

"The morale and sanitary condition of our armies continue excellent."

The following communique has been issued by the War Office:

"On our left wing the enemy had prepared to the north of the River Aisne, between Compeigne and Soissons, a line of defence. Detachments which the enemy had around Amiens have now retired on Peronne and St.
Quentin."

"On our centre, likewise, the Germans had organized a rear defensive position, which they have not been able to hold. In Argonne they have fallen back northwards, beyond the forest of Belfou and of Triancourt."

"On our right wing, the enemy's retreating movement, which is general now, extends from Nancy to the Vosges mountains. Last evening all the French territory in that quarter was completely evacuated."

A batch of German prisoners, composed of a general with his entire staff and six other officers and 300 men, arrived to-day at Noisy-le-See, 50 miles northeast of Paris, whence they were sent to the south."

Unrelenting pursuit of the rapidly retreating German armies by the British and French forces continued yesterday with extraordinary vigor,
according to the French statements."

Despite the great numbers composing their various armies, which operated together against the allies, the German withdrawal movement is being carried out with great rapidity and cleverness. The main body appears to be approaching the Belgian frontier, while the German left wing seemingly is gaining shelter in German Lorraine."

So far as known, the fleeing invaders, who, after wonderful forced marches into France, made such a stern attempt to break through the solid lines of the allies defending Paris, have abandoned more than 60 cannon of various calibre, and 30 machine guns, because their exhausted horses were unable to drag them fast enough to keep up even with the foot-weary infantry. Enormous amounts of ammunition and war stores also were left on the route of the Germans, which is through a difficult marshy country, rendered almost impassable in some places by the heavy rains of the past few days, and which threaten to continue."

The allies, on the other hand, it is asserted, display no signs of fatigue.
They are represented as stirred by unexpectedly great victories to such a state of elation that they are able to keep close on the heels of the retiring enemy, whom they harass day and night, cutting off detachments and attempting to place forces between the retreating armies and the comparative safety of the frontier."

MERELY LOOKS NEUTRAL.

Really Italy Coaled Fleet With Britain's Aid, Says Prince.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 15. — The Temps quotes Prince Tasca di Cuto, an Italian Socialist Deputy, with reference to the attitude of Italy.

"Opinion in Italy," says the Deputy, "is unanimous in demanding the realization of the anti-Triple Alliance program. Every one to-day believes Italy must absolutely separate her policy and destiny from the Triple Alliance."

"United action with the Triple Entente is the inevitable outgrowth of the situation. Italy's neutrality has been a necessary transition. Our military measures have been taken as quickly as geographical conditions permitted, and the Italian army is ready for all eventualities. Our fleet is mobilized and coaled, thanks to arrangements with Britain."

"We are now neutral only in appearance. The action of Italy might definitely turn the scale in favor of the Triple Entente."

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, the heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is which contains no dangerous narcotics or alcohol.

It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fevers; for the run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing.

In liquid or tablet form at most drug stores or send 50 one-cent stamps for trial box to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

BABYLONIAN LEGEND.

New Found Tablets Enlarge Archaeologist's Field of Knowledge.

The Babylonians were rich in accounts of the first beginnings of things, and the religious man had a choice of belief without much danger of being regarded as heterodox, said Mr. T. G. Pinches, in an address in London recently on the latest discoveries in Babylonia.

Further information concerning these legends, as also of those concerning the Flood, have reached us said Mr. Pinches. The opening of the cases containing the inscriptions discovered at Niffer (the Calneh of Genesis) had been resumed, with gratifying results.

One of these documents, inscribed in three columns on each side, has, in the first column, instructions concerning the building of cities, which, it seems, "were given by the gods to the first men."

The second column mentions some of the antediluvian cities of Babylon, which Enlil bestowed upon certain gods. There is a reference also to the city Larak, identified long ago with the Larancha of Berosus, according to whom it was the seat of the prediluvian kings of the land—Amempsinus, who reigned 36,000 years, and Opartes, the father of Xisuthrus, whose reign lasted 28,800 years. Xisuthrus was the Babylonian Atrahasis (the Chaldean Noah), the "exceedingly wise," the favorite of the gods, who saved mankind from destruction and attained to immortality without death.

Other columns of the inscription, it appears refer to the Flood, of which Atrahasis was the central figure, while Ziu-Giddu, "the long-lived," was king.

Babylonian stories of the Flood have already come to light, but the new text at Philadelphia, according to Dr. Poebel, the translator, is an entirely different account, the hero bearing a name different from that found in the other Deluge stories. It is probable, however, that all the versions of the Flood and the legends in general are much older than the time when they were written.

For those who prefer something of a less speculative character than the Creation and Flood legends, the third tablet was of greater importance. This portion, when complete, gave history of the world from the time of the Flood to the reign of the king

THE MATCHBOX TRICK.

It Is the Latest Dodge of the London Confidence Man.

Still the confidence trickster flourishes and waxes fat, thanks to the gullibility of the London visitor. The latest dodge is neat and effective and resulted the other day in an Australian being relieved of $11. The victim was visiting the Zoo, a got into conversation with two individuals, who made themselves agreeable. They left the Zoo together, and had only just got on side, when a well-dressed man from front dropped a matchbox, which one of the confidence men immediately picked up. It appeared to be one of those trick matchboxes, containing hidden spring, which required to be found and pressed before the box could be opened. The trickster, however, easily opened it.

At that moment the individual who had dropped it returned and asked the three if they had seen matchbox anywhere. It was returned to him, when he ventured the information that he would not have lost it for anything, as it was a family treasure and he had a standing wager at his club that no one would open it. Ultimately, after some conversation, he bet any of the three $250 they could not open it.

"I'll bet you I can," said one of the two men, but feeling in his pockets he found he only had $10

ture new text at Philadelphia, according to Dr. Poebel, the translator, is an entirely different account, the hero bearing a name different from that found in the other Deluge stories. It is probable, however, that all the versions of the Flood and the legends in general are much older than the time when they were written.

For those who prefer something of a less speculative character than the Creation and Flood legends, the third tablet was of greater importance. This portion, when complete, gave history of the world from the time of the Flood to the reign of the king under whom the tablet was written. Not only are the names of the kings given, with the lengths of their reigns, but also in some cases there are historical details.

It seems not unlikely that this great Babylonian chronological document will prove to be a completion of that recognized by G. Smith, the Assyriologist, among the treasures of the British Museum in 1873. That scholar fully realized the value of his find, notwithstanding that its completeness fell far short of the new records just announced.

Among the most recent discoveries are the sites of Drehem and Jokha, but of greater importance, because of Biblical reference, is the site of Erech, now known as Warka. The new inscriptions from Erech are mostly trade documents, but in the matter of officials their names are not only important historically, but are likely to be so likewise chronologically, one of the inscriptions dating in the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar.

The Town To Be Born In.

In the German town of Klingenberg, near Aschaffenberg, Bavaria, in addition to having not rates to pay for the upkeep of the town, those actually born in the parish received from the municipality a sum of about $60 a year. This sum, if invested regularly at, say, 3 per cent., would entitle the owner to receive about $7,500 at the age of sixty—a very handsome old age pension. Were it not necessary that the inhabitants should prove that they were born in the parish before becoming entitled to this payment the popularity of Klingenberg as a place of residence would doubtless be enormous.—Westminster Gazette.

It was returned to him, when he ventured the information that he would not have lost it for anything, as it was a family treasure and he had a stand wager at his club that no one would open it. Ultimately, after some conversation, he bet any of the $250 they could not open it.

"I'll bet you I can," said one of the two men, but feeling in pockets he found he only had $1 and a cheque for $375, which he showed to the Australian. Borrowing $150 of the latter, the four went into a taxi-cab, it being agreed that the finder of the box should have ten minutes in which to open it. To the surprise of the Australian his newly-made friend could not open the box again, and in Oxford Circus the owner claimed the $2 which had been deposited with a federate number three.

After a great argument he gave the money and got out of the cab. The man who had failed to open the box and borrowed the $150 from the Australian thereupon asked the latter to come back to the hotel, when he would cash the cheque for $375 and return him the money. The cab stopped at a private hotel, and the confidence man went inside. He was away so long that the second confidence man went to find him. After sitting in the car for some time the Australian came uneasy and went in search of the two men.

Of course, they had vanished through a door which opened in another street, and the Australian was left not only to deplore the loss of his $150, but to pay close up $5 for the taxi-cab fare.

The rich maiden aunt was calling on her poor relations.

"And where is little Tommy?" she inquired, looking round for her favorite.

Little Tommy was brought carrying a large tumbler, from which he refused to be parted.

"Because I want to see you." "And why do you want to see me drink it?"

"Because papa says you drink it like a fish."

THE MATCHBOX TRICK.

Is the Latest Dodge of the London Confidence Man.

Still the confidence trickster flourishes and waxes fat, thanks to the inability of the London visitor. His latest dodge is neat and effective, and resulted the other day in an Australian being relieved of $150. The victim was visiting the Zoo, and went into conversation with two individuals, who made themselves very agreeable. They left the Zoo together, and had just got out, when a well-dressed man in a top hat dropped a matchbox, which one of the confidence men immediately picked up. It appeared to be one of those trick matchboxes, containing a hidden spring, which required to be pulled and pressed before the box could be opened. The trickster, however, easily opened it.

At that moment the individual who had dropped it returned and asked the three if they had seen a matchbox anywhere. It was returned to him, when he ventured the information that he would not have it for anything, as it was a family treasure and he had a standing order at his club that no one could use it. Ultimately, after some conversation, he bet any of the three $50 they could not open it. "I'll bet you I can," said one of the two men, but feeling in his

NEGOTIABLE PAPER

Bills of Exchange, Bank Checks and Promissory Notes.

IN A CLASS BY THEMSELVES.

These Convenient Substitutes For Specie, Which May Pass From Hand to Hand as Readily as Coin, Differ Radically From Other Contracts.

We may speak truthfully of the strength of paper, yet how like a paradox it sounds! From childhood we have been accustomed to take frequent liberties with the flimsy material, to fold and rend it according to our lightest whim, and now to speak of it as strong! But strong it is, and the business world of America is bound into a cohesive whole by the fibers of millions of notes, checks and drafts which pledge the honor and credit of its citizens.

In this brief article we shall attempt to define three kinds of commercial paper—bills of exchange, promissory notes and bank checks—that are all business contracts. They are contracts, however, as to which business convenience decrees that the form shall be just as important as the substance.

If I am hiring Regan the contractor to build my house and we fall out over our agreement the court will consider every possible point connected with the transaction in order to determine what our mutual intentions really were. But if I employ Regan to do the work and give him a promissory note in payment of his services, our rights, so far as that note is concerned, are largely determined by the exact form in which I issued it, taken in connection of course with the subsequent indorsements—that is, whatever written additions were afterward made to it in the course of business.

The vital feature of bills of exchange—or drafts, as they are generally called—promissory notes and bank checks is their negotiability—that is to say, they are a special class of contracts which are so framed and so favored by the law that if certain rules are adhered to they can be passed from man to man quite as freely and far more conveniently than actual cash.

An ordinary contract may be assigned or transferred from one to another. Thus if I have agreed to furnish a large factory with knitting machines I may assign my right to be paid for doing so to Bogardus for a valuable consideration. Suppose, though, that I misrepresented some important feature of my knitting machines to the Success Textile company, which ordered them, and after I have transferred my rights in the contract to Bogardus they find it out. Under such circumstances the textile company can employ the defense of misrepresentation against Bogardus just as readily as they could against me, for he has simply stepped into my shoes and is in no better position than I would be had I remained a party to the contract.

Now, this is just where drafts, notes and bills, or, as they are often called collectively, negotiable instruments or commercial paper, differ radically from other contracts. While still in the hands of the original parties who gave

STRENGTH OF ROPE.

Manila as Strong as a Steel Bar of Equal Weight.

Of the flexible ropes suitable for power transmission, a manila rope is just as strong as a solid steel bar, weight for weight, though only 11-12 per cent. as strong per equal cross section. Leather, on the other hand, is only about 5 per cent. as strong as a steel bar of equal cross section and less than 40 per cent. as strong per equal weight of material, says an expert in Power.

Records show that rope manufactured from the fiber of palms was used in Egypt long before the days of Christianity. Such ropes were found in the tombs of Beni-Hassan (3,000 B.C.) and on the walls of these same tombs are illustrations depicting the preparation of hemp. Carvings found in tombs in Thebes represent the process of making rope from thongs of leather, about 1,600 B.C., and Assyrian sculptures of about fifty years later show gigantic hauling operations performed with rope. These records are of particular interest as indicative of the steps through which rope manufacture passed in the early ages.

rights in the contract to Bogardus they find it out. Under such circumstances the textile company can employ the defense of misrepresentation against Bogardus just as readily as they could against me, for he has simply stepped into my shoes and is in no better position than I would be had I remained a party to the contract.

Now, this is just where drafts, notes and bills, or, as they are often called collectively, negotiable instruments or commercial paper, differ radically from other contracts. While still in the hands of the original parties who gave them birth they are subject to any defenses which one may have against the other, so that if Curzon gives a promissory note for $100, due in sixty days, to Plaisted and then finds that through mutual dealings Plaisted really owes him $500 he may at the end of the sixty days refuse to pay Plaisted the note and demand instead $400 from him. Suppose, however, that Plaisted has meanwhile sold the note to Rangely, who knows nothing of his debt to Curzon, can Curzon still set off Plaisted's debt and refuse to pay Rangely the note? Undoubtedly he cannot do so.

Such a case illustrates the distinguishing characteristic of commercial paper. Like a bird which has flown from the parent nest, it is freed from any defenses which the original parties to it may have, just as soon as it has been purchased, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, by some third person.

In every other form of contract the rule is otherwise; land bears its burdens from owner to owner, the assigned mortgage conveys no better title to the purchaser than the assignor had to give; but for the purely practical reason that in trade there must be some convenient representative of specie, which may pass from hand to hand as readily as actual coin, a general agreement and strength of custom among merchants bred the three forms of credit paper—the bill of exchange, the promissory note and the bank check—all of which travel, in the words of a great jurist, as couriers without luggage, and to all of which an innocent purchaser, for value, gets an absolutely clear title.

depicting the preparation of hemp. Carvings found in tombs in Thebes represent the process of making rope from thongs of leather, about 1,600 B.C., and Assyrian sculptures of about fifty years later show gigantic hauling operations performed with rope. These records are of particular interest as indicative of the steps through which rope manufacture passed in the early ages.

The relative efficiency of manila rope and leather belting for the transmission of power is not directly proportional to their respective strengths, however, as the internal construction of hemp rope and a strip of leather differ greatly and very differently by wear. Manila fibers from which the rope is manufactured are usually from eight to ten feet in length, are composed of elongated cells that possess great strength longitudinally, but are comparatively weak transversely. Leather, on the other hand, is about equally strong in any direction, so that the wear on such a belt is mostly external. In a manila rope the wear is largely internal, the elongated fiber cells being crushed together when passing around a sheave and breaking up into short pieces. A worn-out manila rope, so far as its strength is concerned, may have the outward appearance of an excellent rope, while internally its construction is but a mass of short, broken particles. The allowable working stress of a good leather belt is customarily taken as 320 pounds per square inch, or about one-tenth its tensile strength. In the course of a year or so a manila rope will lose about 50 per cent. of its original strength, after which the weakening becomes more gradual. Under such conditions it is safe to figure on an allowable working stress of about 288 pounds per square inch, or one-thirty-second its tensile strength.

Types of Female Beauty.

In northern Europe, among the Teutonic races, there are distinct types of beauty to be met with in Sweden, Poland, Saxony and Austria. The Swedish type, however, lacks animation, but the mold and figure to some extent atone for this, says The London Globe. The Austrian women possess a composite beauty in which are united the charms of three or four races. Vienna ladies are tall and stately, with great harmony and proportion in feature and figure. The Tyrolese maiden often lacks a good figure, but her face and manner, possess all that is most bewitching in the two races of which she is composed, Latin and Germanic.

Must Keep It Dry.

The teacher had explained to a primary class the difference between solids and liquids and illustrated her points by objects kept on a table. When she thought her pupils had grasped the idea she held up her watch and asked, "Now, children, must I put this among the solids or among the liquids?" "Among the solids, teacher," a bright little boy replied. "Why not among the liquids?" she asked. "Because," replied the little fellow—"because if you do you will get it wet."

Weather and Conscience.

Old Zeb Hawkins sat on a log near the bridge one Sunday morning, casting anxious glances at an uncertain sky now and then. His willow fish pole and a can of bait lay at his feet. Before he had quite decided on the weather the minister came by, having taken a short cut owing to the fear of a sudden shower. "Well, Brudder Zeb, is you gwine to chu'ch or is you gwine fishin'?" he asked. "Ah dunno yet," said Zeb. "Ah'm jest a-wrastlin' wif ma conscience."

About the Work of the National Council of Young Men's Christian Associations of Canada Among the Canadian

TROOPS AT VALCARTIER.

September, 10th, 1914.

Year after year for 43 years the Young Men's Christian Association has conducted work among the Canadian Militia at their Annual Training Camps. This work has so approved itself that His Royal Highness, the Governor-General, has graciously consented to become Patron, the Militia Council has given its official recognition, commandants of camps have stated that they would not want to conduct a camp without the Association, the present Minister of Militia and Defence in speaking of it said:—"It is gold to the country" and the men expect to find the "Y.M.C.A." tent and look for it and make large use of it.

At the time of the Boer War the Canadian Association sent Messrs. Howard Barrie and T. F. Best with two of Canadian contingents. During the Spanish-American War, the North American Associations, through their International Committee, followed the American soldiers to their State Camps, to the mobilization camps and to Cuba and the Philippines. In the Russo-Japanese War, American (U. S. and Canada) and Japanese Y.M.C.A. Secretaries accompanied the Japanese army to the front. So impressed with the value of the work and appreciative of the services rendered was the Emperor of Japan, that he gave $5,000 gold towards defraying the expense involved.

Immediately upon the outbreak of the present war between Britain and Germany the Canadian National Council offered its services to the Canadian Militia Department for work at the mobilization camp and over-seas. Canadian hearts go out towards the 30,000 or more Canadian troops at Valcartier, and there the Canadian National Council of Young Men's Christian Associations is working for the welfare, comfort and convenience of these men. Our equipment consists at present of three large tents, and we are considering the feasibility of duplicating this. Ten thousand letterheads and five thousand envelopes daily are being distributed to the men gratis; the average daily sale of postage stamps is over $800; picture post cards largely military or patriotic, are sold; tables, pens and ink are provided. This department alone takes the time of three men. "The Dry Canteen" supplements the army rations. Here at moderate cost are provided biscuits, cakes, pies, oranges, bananas, ice-cream, orangeade, etc. This is a popular place, and it is not uncommon to see the men lined up four or five deep waiting to be served. Especially after a hard drill do the men enjoy a "snack" For those disposed to indulge in such recreation, and there are many balls and bats, footballs and quits are provided, while for those less strenuously inclined checkers, chess and dominoes are at hand; for those with musical tastes there is the piano, which is much used. Magazines and other wholesome literature is distributed—3,000 pieces the first two days. Moving pictures are shown outdoors or in the tent, the General Film Exchange in Montreal furnishing without charge two reels daily. Song services and gospel meetings, largely attended, are held "down the lines," around a camp fire or in one of the tents. At the camp-fire meeting, as many crowd around as can hear and all join heart-

DR. ROBINSON REFUSED BAIL

But Application Will Be Renewed Before Trial Judge at Napanee.

In Mr. Justice Latchford's private room at Osgoode Hall at one o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Mr. T. C. Robette, K. C., asked for a bail order on behalf of his client, committed to trial on a murder charge arising from the death of Blanche Yorke. Mr. ward Bayly, K. C., appeared for Attorney-General.

His Lordship refused the application but Mr. Robinette will move again at the Assizes at Napanee. The trial will open on Tuesday of next week.

Dr. C. K. Robinson, charged with the murder of Miss Blanche Yorke, appeared before P. Magistrate Rankin in the town on Friday afternoon last. Mr. V. Wilson represented the Crown, Mr. T. C. Robinette, K. C., of Toronto and R. W. S. Herrington, K. C. Napanee, represented the prisoner. Mr. Wilson put in, as exhibit on behalf of the Crown, the evidence taken at the Coroner's inquest, the report of Drs. Connell and W. on the body of Blanche Yorke. Robinette, on behalf of the prisoner, contended that the reports being accepted as evidence, Mr. Wilson represented the witnesses the questions and answers given at the inquest, and asked the witnesses to again confirm their evidence.

Miss Agnes Walsh was called to repeat the conversation and movement of Blanche Yorke on the eve of her disappearance. Miss Yorke left her to go to Dr. Robinson's office. Frank Yorke repeated his denial of having seen Miss Yorke going to Dr. Robinson's office and seeing a light there for some time afterwards.

J. S. Taylor, the man from whom Dr. Robinson purchased some furniture, and when making a seizure assisted in finding the body described the finding of the mattress gone from the bed in the south room, and on further investigation the bloodstains on the floor and on clothes found in a bag in a closet. Taylor had helped disinter the remains found in the cellar. He recognized the remains as those of Blanche Yorke, also found the body of infant underneath her body.

Dr. Wilson, who was called to the finding of the bloodstains on the floor, repeated his statements regarding the finding of the bodies. The bodies were nude and badly decomposed, and both legs were missing from the adult body.

Mr. Robinette—Dr. Wilson, could you say that any instruments been used on that girl?

Answer—I could not.

Q.—Could you say that conditions were any different from that of a woman who had had a miscarriage without an illegal operation?

A.—I cannot say. I found no evidence of an illegal operation.

County Constable Van Koughn who visited Dr. Robinson with Inspector Miller, stated that Dr. Robinson admitted to them that he had Miss Yorke on the operating table an hour and a half, treating her gas on the stomach.

Dr. Robinson, on the advice of the council, refused to make any statement, and the Magistrate committed him to jail until the next Assizes.

Magazines and other wholesome literature is distributed—3,000 pieces the first two days. Moving pictures are shown outdoors or in the tent, the General Film Exchange in Montreal furnishing without charge two reels daily. Song services and gospel meetings, largely attended, are held "down the lines," around a camp fire or in one of the tents. At the camp-fire meeting, as many crowd around as can hear and all join heartily in singing of the old well-known hymns. A special hymn and song book (an edition of 25,000), is being prepared to give the men as they leave for the front. There are now thirty Association men engaged in the work at Valcartier. Associations are releasing their Secretaries, and several Churches have loaned their pastors for this service.

The value of all this work and of the silent influences of our workers, and even of the name "Y.M.C.A." itself among men situated as our troops at Valcartier, is not easily estimated, but it is very great.

WAR SUMMARY.

The Germans intend to make a fight for La Fere and Laon, two of the most important railway junctions in northern France. That is the meaning of the rather scanty news permitted to pass the censors yesterday. The extension of the German front westward to Noyon, on the Oise, over fifty miles northwest of Rheims, means that a most determined resistance is being made to the attempt of General Pau and the British army to outflank the German right and force a retirement toward the Belgian frontier. The French official statement uses the word battle to describe the general engagement now in progress all along the line. The Germans hold good defensive positions on high ground, and they are being reinforced from Belgium, whence, no doubt, also will come ammunition and food supplies so sorely lacking on the Marne last week. The battle now joined is likely to be as fiercely fought as that from which Van Kluck's army emerged so badly battered. Once more the brunt of the fighting will fall to the armies in the western arena. The Allies are not likely to dissipate their strength against prepared positions by making frontal attacks. A wide detour to the west by the Allies will force Van Kluck once more to change front to meet it, while the German armies will by way of counter-attack seek to pierce the centre of the allied armies between Rheims and Ville-sur-Tourbe.

The tremendous wastage of his cavalry will make it difficult for Van Kluck to screen and protect his right flank. The Allies must now have a very distinct advantage in mounted men, and the reported landing in France of cavalry from India should greatly increase that lead. The native horsemen of the British Indian Army are notable swordsmen and experts with the lance.

Dr. Robinson, on the advice of council, refused to make any statement, and the Magistrate committed him to jail until the next Assizes.

DR. ROBINSON REFUSED BAIL.

Application Will Be Renewed Before Trial Judge at Napanee.

In Mr. Justice Latchford's private court at Osgoode Hall at one o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mr. T. C. Robinson, K. C., asked for a bail order on behalf of his client, committed for trial on a murder charge arising from the death of Blanche Yorke. Mr. Edward Bayly, K. C., appeared for the Attorney-General.

His Lordship refused the application and Mr. Robinson will move again in the Assizes at Napanee. The sittings will open on Tuesday of next week.

Dr. C. K. Robinson, charged with the murder of Miss Blanche Yorke at Napanee, appeared before Police Magistrate Rankin in the town hall Friday afternoon last. Mr. W. G. Wilson represented the Crown, and T. C. Robinson, K. C., of Toronto, and Mr. W. S. Herrington, K. C., of Napanee, represented the prisoner. Mr. Wilson put in, as exhibits on behalf of the Crown, the evidence given at the Coroner's inquest and a report of Drs. Connell and Wilson of the body of Blanche Yorke. Mr. Robinson, on behalf of the prisoner, objected to the reports being accepted as evidence. Mr. Wilson read to the witnesses the questions and their answers given at the inquest, and asked the witnesses to again confirm their evidence.

Miss Agnes Walsh was called and repeated the conversation and movement of Blanche Yorke on the evening of her disappearance. Miss Yorke then went to Dr. Robinson's office. Frank Yorke repeated his evidence of having seen Miss Yorke go to Dr. Robinson's office and of finding a light there for some time afterwards.

S. Taylor, the man from whom Robinson purchased some furniture, and when making a seizure of the furniture assisted in finding the body, described the finding of the mattress in the bed in the south bedroom, and on further investigation bloodstains on the floor and on the bed were found in a bag in a closet. Mr. Taylor had helped disinter the remains and in the cellar. He recognized the remains as those of Blanche Yorke, also found the body of an infant underneath her body.

Mr. Wilson, who was called after finding of the bloodstains on the floor, repeated his statements regarding the finding of the bodies. Both bodies were nude and badly decomposed and both legs were missing from the adult body.

Dr. Robinson—Dr. Wilson, could you say that any instruments had been used on that girl?

Answer—I could not.

—Could you say that conditions were any different from that of a woman who had had a miscarriage without an illegal operation?

—I cannot say. I found no evidence of an illegal operation.

County Constable Van Koughnet, who visited Dr. Robinson with Inspector Miller, stated that Dr. Robinson admitted to them that he had had Blanche Yorke on the operating table for four and a half hours, treating her for a stone on the stomach.

Dr. Robinson, on the advice of his counsel, refused to make any statement, and the Magistrate committed him to jail until the next Assizes.

THREE BELLEVILLIANS WERE DROWNED NEAR BAYSIDE ON SUNDAY

Terrible Triple Tragedy Caused by Careening of Swift-Moving Motor Boat—Two Men Rescued From Water—Sixth Remained in Boat.

Belleville was horror-stricken at a message from Trenton that three popular young local men had been drowned at 5.05 p.m., Sunday, off Baker's Island in the Bay of Quinte, three miles east of Trenton.

Mr. Norman Hall, a popular young poolroom manager, on Sunday afternoon took a boatload of Belleville friends to Trenton. They were Frederick Clayton Gerow, Jimmy White, Clair Jenkins, Fred Palmateer, and Harry Symons, all well-known young men. Shortly before five o'clock after half an hour's stay they left Trenton on their return to Belleville for supper. The bay was as calm as glass and the weather was very mild. The boat was proceeding along at the rate of about sixteen miles per hour. Mr. Hall, according to one statement, who was steering, turned to light a cigarette. He had to strike a number of matches as the wind was strong, and Jimmy White made an effort to turn the boat. He touched one of the cords leading to the rudder and the boat listed suddenly. To offset this White is said to have taken the other cord giving it a sudden jerk. The "Wren" turned with great suddenness, throwing out five of the occupants. Hall alone succeeded in remaining in it. After a time he managed to right the boat which had proceeded quite a distance and the water which had come over the side then reached the engine, causing it to stall. Norman Hall, realizing the great danger to his companions in the water, turned the boat and paddled as fast as he could to the scene. Symons and Palmateer were swimming, but could not succeed in getting into the boat. Clare Jenkins appears to have been the only one of the five who were thrown out that could not swim. Gerow and White were swimmers and seem to have made for Jenkins to rescue him. They came up once all together and then sank to rise no more. After nearly twenty-five minutes of swimming in the cold water, Symons and Palmateer were rescued in an almost exhausted condition being taken aboard the tug of the Wedell dredge, which has been working at Baker's Island.

"THE WAR."

Watchman on the wall of time
Tell us why this war of thine,
Why this tramp of many feet
Why this music shrill and sweet,
Why this sound of shot and shell,
Tell us why oh watchman, tell!
Is it for wanted pride or power,
To sway the sceptre for an hour,
To hold within a hollow hand
A little more of earth's fair land,
Or is it for some fancied slight
To curse a nation with war's blight?

I hear the orphaned children cry,
And beg for bread but none reply.
I hear the widows wail of woe,
There's none to comfort as they go
Seeking to save their children's life,
For are they not a soldier's wife?

I see the dear fond mother's sons,
Marching away behind their guns.
How many will come back again
From shot and shell that fell like rain;
But she cheer her boy that he must not lag,
But follow to honour his nation's flag!

But He who is the King of Peace
Will soon bid all earth's troubles cease.
Man's angry passions will calm at His call,
For He is our King, the Ruler of all,
We lay down our arms, we bow at His feet,
And find in His mercy a Sovereign complete!

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Grain prices crashed downward today in a whirl of selling, due to belief that the war might end soon. The close was wild, with wheat 6½c to 8½c lower than Saturday night, corn off 2½c to 2½c, and oats showing a setback of 3½c to 4½c net. In provisions, the outcome started from 35c decline to an equal advance.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 14.—Quite a collapse took place in wheat prices today, owing to heavy receipts and consequent hedging sales and favorable reports from the seat of war. The opening was 1½c to 2½c lower for wheat, for oats 2½c, flax unchanged to ¼c higher.

The movement of wheat is astonishingly heavy in face of the unsettled weather. Inspections were 2852 cars, which approximately represents around 3,500,000 bushels of grain.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—A few cables took place in wheat prices today, owing to heavy receipts and consequent hedging sales and favorable reports from the seat of war. The opening was 1½c to 2½c lower for wheat, for oats 2½c, flax unchanged to ¼c higher.

In sympathy with another sharp decline of 20c to 2½c, the market for done in cattle ranging from $7.50 to $8.25 per 100 lbs. The trade in canning stock was very active and altho the supply was large prices ruled steady with sales of bulls at $5 to $5.50, and cows at $3.75 to $4.25 per 100 lbs.

Owing to the decline in prices in the Toronto market for live hogs late last week, a weaker feeling developed in the local market today, and prices declined 30 cents per 100 lbs., as compared with this day week. At this reduction the demand from packers was good and an active trade was done with sales of selected lots at $10.10, sows at $8.10, and stags at $5.05 per 100 lbs, weighed off cars.

A feature of the small meat market today was the demand from American buyers of lambs and sales of several carloads were made for shipment to Boston at $7.75 per hundred lbs., while local buyers paid $7.50 to $8 for Ontario stock and $6.50 to $7 for Quebec per 100 lbs. There was no change in sheep for which the demand was good for local account. Calves were fairly active with sales of milk-fed stock at 8c to 9c per lb. live weight. Quotations were: Butchers' cattle, choice, $8.50 to $8.70; medium, $7.25 to $8.25; do. common, $6 to $6.50; canners, $3.75 to $5.50; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $7.25 to $7.50; do. medium, $3 to $7; do. bulls, $6 to $7.50; milkers, choice, each, $80 to $85; do. common and medium, each, $70 to $75; springers, $55 to $65; sheep, ewes, $4.75 to $5; buck and culls, $4.25 to $4.50; lambs, $6.50 to $8; hogs, off cars, $10.10; calves, $5 to $20.

Human Strides.

Many correspondents have been testing the length of their stride, even those small boys who pace out the length of a cricket pitch in assurance that twenty-two long steps make twenty-two yards. But a walker from the city avers he comes as near as most men to the yard to the step on a long walk. He stands five feet eight and one-half inches, has a swing from the hips and has always between mile-stones stepped from 1,030 to 1,710 paces to the mile. That, of course, is a solitary walk. In a regiment the pace must be set by the average of the longest and shortest stepper.—London Opinion.

Yet sweet the memory is to me,
And I commend thee to the God of Love.

I was left a babe for God to save
From sin; He set me free
For God and man: My flag to wave,

TRAMP, TRAMP, THE BOYS ARE MARCHING.

God bless the dear old dads
Who have given up their lads
To fight for our Canadian homes;
God bless the mothers, too,
For I know their hearts are true
To the dear Old Flag of all Canadian homes.

CHORUS—

Tramp, tramp, the boys are marching
Cheer up let the Germans come,
For beneath the Union Jack
We will drive the rebels back,
And will fight for our dear Canadian home.

God bless the British boys,
And fill their hearts with joy,
As far away on the battle field they roam;
Oh, may they all come back,
And wave the Union Jack,
The dear old flag of all Canadian homes.

In the battle front they stood,
And a great charge was made;
They swept them off a thousand men
And before the Germans reached
The were beaten back dismayed,
While our boys they shouted victory o'er and o'er!

There is many a heart that's sad,
In absence of the lad,
Who left his home and went away to fight.

Oh, may they all return
To mother once again.
Who for her boy does pray both morn and night

Now, while heartily we sing,
God Save Our Gracious King,
And hope the war will soon be o'er.
May they all return
To loved once again,
Who are waiting to greet them at the door.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—A few cables were received today asking exporters to make offers of wheat and bids of 23s were made for new crop No. 2 C. W. oats for October shipment.

In sympathy with another sharp decline of 2c to 2 1-2c per bushel in prices for oats in the Winnipeg market, a weaker feeling has developed in the local market and prices for old crop oats have declined 4c to 5c and new crop Ontario oats 1c per bushel. The demand is limited and the volume of business doing is small. Owing to the continued weakness in the wheat markets at American and Canadian centres and another decline in prices of 5c to 8c per bushel, there is an easier feeling in the local flour market, and unless prices react again in the near future for wheat, there will likely be a reduction in prices for flour. The demand is quieter today. Millfeed is unchanged, with a fair demand. At the auction sale today finest creamery butter sold lower at 28 5-8c, but apart from this, there was no change in the market. There was more enquiry for cheese from over the cable today and sales of some fair-sized lots were made Eggs active and firm.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 144 cars, comprising 2686 cattle, 796 hogs, 1292 sheep and lambs and 178 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice steers sold at $8.50 to $9; loads of good, $8.25 to $8.50; medium to good, $7.75 to $8.15; medium, $7.50 to $7.75; common to medium, $7.25 to $7.50; inferior heifers, $6.50 to $7; choice cows, $6.75 to $7; good cows, $6.25 to $6.50; medium cows, $5.75 to $6; common cows, $5 to $4.50; choice bulls, $6.75 to $7.50; common bulls, $5 to $6.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

There was a fair supply, but quality was not up to the requirements of the demand. Choice steers, 800 to 900 lbs., sold at $7.25 to $7.50; good steers, $6 to 700 lbs., at $6.75 to $7; stockers at $5 to $6.50.

Milkers and Springers.

A fair supply sold at prices ranging from $60 to $90 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts moderate and values practically unchanged. Choice veal calves, $10 to $10.50; good, $8.50 to $9.50; medium, $7.50 to $8.50; common, $6.50 to $7.50; inferior at $5.50 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were moderate. Sheep, ewes, light, and of good quality, sold at $6 to $6.25; heavy ewes and rams, $4 to $5; yearlings, $6.25 to $7; lambs sold at from $8 to $8.30, the bulk going at $8 to $8.15.

Hogs.

Hogs, selects, fed and watered, $9.50, and $9.75 weighed off cars, and $9.15 f.o.b. cars at country points.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west-end market, the receipts of the live stock for the week ending Sept. 12, were 8000 cattle, 3350 sheep and lambs, 3300 hogs, 800 calves. The supply on the market for sale this morning consisted of 2300 cattle, 2500 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 600 calves.

The run of cattle today was again very large, but as fully 75 per cent. of it consisted of canning stock, there was no further change in the condition of the market for butchers' cattle, the feeling being firm with an increased demand and a more active trade was done owing to the fact that packers in some cases were short of supplies of good beef. A few loads of choice steers changed hands at $8.50, but the bulk of the trading was ty-two yards. But a walker from the city avers he comes as near as most men to the yard to the step on a long walk. He stands five feet eight and one-half inches, has a swing from the hips and has always between milestones stepped from 1,690 to 1,710 paces to the mile. That, of course, is a solitary walk. In a regiment the pace must be set by the average of the longest and shortest stepper.—London Opinion.

CANADIAN FLOUR MILLS WILL RUN AT FULL CAPACITY

Orders from the Dominion and Ontario Governments for an aggregate of 1,250,000 barrels of flour are only the beginning of the increased demand on the flour mills of Canada as a result of the war.
The mobilization of the armies of Europe will result in a large reduction in the acreage sown to wheat in that Continent. That reduction in acreage and consequent reduction in yield will greatly increase the demand for wheat and flour from other producing countries. Canada will find a ready market for all the wheat and flour she can export during the war. The flour mills of Canada will be kept busy grinding Canadian wheat into Canadian flour, for export to the Mother Country at this time of trial.

In the home market also there will be an increased demand for flour. The tendency of many will be to use more bread and other staple articles of food instead of the luxuries of the table. This will mean an increased consumption of flour.
Thus it would appear that the 7000 men who are working in the flour mills of Canada are assured of continued employment throughout the war. It is possible the number of employees in flour mills will have to be increased but even if an increase should be unnecessary the continued operation of this industry will mean the circulation of approximately four million dollars a year to Canadian workmen.

The Story of Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Copyright, 1913, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

CHAPTER III.

Something of a Hero.

IVORY went into the little shed room off the kitchen, changed his muddy boots for slippers and made himself generally tidy, then he came back to the living room bringing a pine knot which he flung on the fire, waking it to a brilliant flame.

"We can be as lavish as we like with the stumps now, mother, for spring is coming," he said, as he sat down to his meal.

"I've been looking out more than usual this afternoon," she replied. "There's hardly any snow left, and though the walking is so bad I've been rather expecting your father before night. You remember he said when he went away in January that he should be back before the mayflowers bloomed?"

It did not do any good to say: "Yes, mother, but the mayflowers have bloomed ten times since father went spirit world." Mrs. Boynton was now fully started on the topic that absorbed her mind, and Ivory could do nothing but let her tell the story that she had told him a hundred times.

"I remember when first we heard Jacob Cochrane speak." (This was her usual way of beginning.) "Your father was a preacher, as you know, Ivory, but you will never know what a wonderful preacher he was. My grandfather, being a fine gentleman and a governor, would not give his consent to my marriage, but I never regretted it, never! Your father saw Elder Cochrane at a revival meeting of the Free Will Baptists in Scarboro and was much impressed with him. A few days later he went to the funeral of a child in the same neighborhood. No one who was there could ever forget it. The minister had made his long prayer when a man suddenly entered the room, came toward the coffin and placed his hand on the child's forehead. The room in an instant was as still as the death that had called us together. The stranger was tall and of commanding presence; his eyes pierced our very hearts, and his marvelous voice penetrated to depths in our souls that had never been reached before."

"Was he a better speaker than my father?" asked Ivory, who dreaded his mother's hours of complete silence even more than her periods of reminiscence.

"He spoke as if the Lord of Hosts had given him inspiration; as if the angels were pouring words into his mouth just for him to utter," replied Mrs. Boynton. "Your father was spell-bound, and I only less so. When he ceased speaking the child's mother crossed the room and, swaying to and fro, fell at his feet sobbing and wailing and imploring God to forgive her sins. They carried her upstairs, and when we looked about after the confusion and excitement the stranger had vanished. But we found him again! As Elder Cochrane said: 'The prophet of the Lord can never be hid; no darkness is thick enough to cover him!' There was a six weeks' revival meeting in North Saco, where 300 souls were converted, and your father and I were among them. We had fancied ourselves true believers for years, but Jacob Cochrane unstopped our ears so that we could hear the truths revealed to him by the Almighty! It was all so simple and easy at the beginning, but it grew hard and grievous afterward; hard to keep the path, I mean. I never quite knew whether God was angry with me for backsliding at the end, but I could not always accept the revelations that Elder Cochrane and your father had!"

Lois Boynton's hands were now quietly folded over the knitting that lay forgotten in her lap, but her low, thrilling voice had a note in it that did not belong wholly to earth.

There was a long silence; one of many long silences at the Boynton fireside, broken only by the ticking of the clock, the purring of the cat and the clicking of Mrs. Boynton's needles, as, her paroxysm of reminiscence over, she knitted ceaselessly, with her eyes on the window or the door.

"It's about time for Rod to be coming back. Isn't it?" asked Ivory.

"He ought to be here soon, but perhaps he is gone for good. It may be that he thinks he has made us a long enough visit. I don't know whether your father will like the boy when he comes home. He never did fancy company in the house."

"I didn't remember I had a sister. Is she dead, Ivory?" asked Mrs. Boynton vaguely.

"If she were not dead do you suppose you would have kept Rodman with us when we hadn't bread enough for our own two mouths, mother?" questioned Ivory patiently.

"No, of course not. I can't think how I can be so forgetful. It's worse sometimes than others. It's worse today because I knew the mayflowers were blooming, and that reminded me it was time for your father to come home. You must forgive me, dear, and will you excuse me if I sit in the kitchen awhile? The window by the side door looks out toward the road, and if I put a candle on the sill it shines quite a distance. The lane is such a long one, and your father was always a sad stumbler in the dark! I shouldn't like him to think I wasn't looking for him when he's been gone since January."

Ivory's pipe went out, and his book slipped from his knee unnoticed.

His mother was more confused than usual, but she always was when spring came to remind her of her husband's promise. Somehow, well used as he was to her mental wanderings, they made him uneasy tonight. His father had left home on a fancied mission, a duty he believed to be a revelation given by God through Jacob Cochrane. The farm did not miss him much at first. Ivory reflected bitterly, for since his fanatical espousal of Cochrane his father's interest in such mundane matters as household expenses had diminished month by month until they had no meaning for him at all. Letters to wife and boy had come at first, but after six months, during which he had written from many places, continually deferring the date of his return, they had ceased altogether. The rest was silence. Rumors of his presence here or there came from time to time; but, though Parson Lane and Dr. Perry did their best, none of them were ever substantiated.

Where had those years of wandering been passed, and had they all been given even to an imaginary and fantastic service of God? Was his father dead? If he were alive, what could keep him from writing? Nothing but a very strong reason or a very wrong one, so his son thought at times.

Since Ivory had grown to man's estate he understood that in the later days of Cochrane's preaching his "visions," "inspirations" and "revelations" concerning the marriage bond were a trifle startling from the old fashioned, orthodox point of view. His most advanced disciples were to hold themselves in readiness to renounce their former vows and seek "spiritual consorts," sometimes according to his advice, sometimes as their inclinations prompted.

Had Aaron Boynton forsaken willingly the wife of his youth, the mother of his boy? If so he must have realized to what straits he was subjecting them. Ivory had not forgotten those first few years of grinding poverty, anxiety and suspense. His mother's mind had stood the strain bravely, but it gave way at last; not, however, until that fatal winter journey to New Hampshire, when cold, exposure and fatigue did their worst for her weak body. Religious enthusiast, exalted and impressionable, a natural mystic, she had probably always been, far more so in temperament, indeed, than her husband; but, although she left home on

"Don't answer me back!"

up in the barn chamber. That's one of the things I won't have around premises—a whistlin' girl."

"'Twas a Sabbath school hymn that I was whistling!" This with a creditable imitation of defiance.

"That don't make it any better. Sh your hymns if you must make a noise while you're workin'."

"It's the same mouth that makes a whistle and sings the song, so I don't see why one's any wickeder than the other."

"You don't have to see," replied the deacon grimly. "All you have to do to mind when you're spoken to. No run 'long 'bout your work."

"Can't I go up to Ellen's, then?"

"What's goin' on up there?"

"Just a frolic. There's always a go time at Ellen's, and I would so like to sight of a big, rich house now a then!"

"Just a frolic!" Land o' Gosh! hear the girl! 'Sight of a big, rich house,' indeed! Will there be any be at the party?"

"I s'pose so or 'twouldn't be a frolic said Patty, with awful daring, 't there won't be many—only a few Mark's friends."

"Well, there ain't goin' to be no more argyfin'! I won't have any girl mine frolickin' with boys, so that's the end of it. You're kind o' crazy late riggin' yourself out with a ribbon and a flower there and pullin' your hair down over your ears. Why do you want to cover your ears up? What a they for?"

"To hear you with, father," Pat replied, with honey sweet voice as eyes that blazed.

"Well, I hope they'll never hear anything worse," replied her father, flinging a bucket of water over the last of the wagon wheels.

"They couldn't!" These words were never spoken aloud; but, oh, how Pat longed to shout them with a clarion voice as she walked away in perfect silence, her majestic gait showing, she hoped, how she resented the outcome of the interview.

"I've stood up to father!" she claimed triumphantly as she entered the kitchen and set down her valise.

away." He had tried that, gently and persistently when first her mind began to be confused, from long grief and hurt love, stricken pride and sick suspense.

Instead of that Ivory turned the subject cheerily, saying, "Well, we're sure of a good season, I think. There's been a grand snowfall and that, they say, is the poor man's manure. Rod and I will put in more corn and potatoes this year. I shan't have to work single handed very long, for he is growing to be quite a farmer."

"Your father was very fond of green corn, but he never cared for potatoes," Mrs. Boynton said, vaguely, taking up her knitting. "I always had great pride in my cooking, but I could never get your father to relish my potatoes."

"Well, his son does, anyway," Ivory replied, helping himself plentifully from a dish that held one of his mother's best concoctions, potatoes minced fine and put together into the spider with thin bits of pork and all browned together.

"I saw the Baxter girls today, mother," he continued not because he hoped she would give any heed to what he said, but from the sheer longing for companionship. "The deacon drove off with Lawyer Wilson, who wanted him to give testimony in some case or other down in Milltown. The minute Patty saw him going up Saco hill she harnessed the old starved Baxter mare, and the girls started over to the Lower Corner to see some friends. It seems it's Patty's birthday, and they were celebrating. I met them just as they were coming back and helped them lift the rickety wagon out of the mud. They were stuck in it up to the hubs of the wheels. I advised them to walk up the Town House hill if they ever expected to get the horse home."

"Town House hill?" said Ivory's mother, dropping her knitting. "That was where we had such wonderful meetings. Truly the Lord was present in our midst. And oh, Ivory, the visions we saw in that place when Jacob Cochrane first unfolded his gospel to us! Was ever such a man!"

"Probably not, mother," remarked Ivory dryly.

"You were speaking of the Baxters. I remember their home and the little girl who used to stand in the gateway and watch when we came out of meeting. There was a baby too. Isn't there a Baxter baby, Ivory?"

"She didn't stay a baby. She is seventeen years old today, mother."

"You surprise me, but children do grow very fast. She had a strange name, but I cannot recall it."

"Her name is Patience, but nobody but her father calls her anything but Patty, which suits her much better."

"No; the name wasn't Patience, not the one I mean."

"The older sister is Waitstill. Perhaps you mean her." And Ivory sat down by the fire, with his book and his pipe.

"Waitstill! Waitstill! That is it! Such a beautiful name!"

"She's a beautiful girl."

"Waitstill! They also serve who only stand and wait! Wait, I say, on the Lord and he will give thee the desires of thy heart! Those were wonderful days, when we were caught up out of the body and mingled freely in the fireside, broken only by the ticking of the clock, the purring of the cat and the clicking of Mrs. Boynton's needles, as, her paroxysm of reminiscence over, she knitted ceaselessly, with her eyes on the window or the door.

"It's about time for Rod to be coming back. Isn't it?" asked Ivory.

"He ought to be here soon, but perhaps he is gone for good. It may be

Ivory looked up in astonishment from his Greek grammar. This was an entirely new turn of his mother's mind. Often when she was more than usually confused he would try to clear the cobwebs from her brain by gently questioning her until she brought herself back to a clearer understanding of her own thought. Thus far her vagaries had never made her unjust to any human creature. She was uniformly sweet and gentle in speech and demeanor.

"Why do you talk of Rod's visiting us when he is one of the family?" Ivory asked quietly.

"Is he one of the family? I didn't know it," replied his mother absently.

"Look at me, mother, straight in the eye. That's right. Now listen, dear, to what I say."

Mrs. Boynton's hair, that had been in her youth like an aureole of corn silk, was now a strange yellow white, and her blue eyes looked out from her pale face with a helpless appeal.

"You and I were living alone here after father went away," Ivory began. "I was a little boy, you know. You and father had saved something, there was the farm, you worked like a slave, I helped, and we lived somehow, do you remember?"

"I do indeed. It was cold, and the neighbors were cruel. Jacob Cochrane had gone away, and his disciples were not always true to him. When the magnetism of his presence was withdrawn they could not follow all his revelations, and they forgot how he had awakened their spiritual life at the first of his preaching. Your father was always a staunch believer, but when he started on his mission and went to Parsonsfield to help Elder Cochrane in his meetings the neighbors began to criticise him. They doubted him. You were too young to realize it, but I did, and it almost broke my heart."

"I was nearly twelve years old. Do you think I escaped all the gossip, mother?"

"You never spoke of it to me, Ivory."

"No, there is much that I never spoke of to you, mother, but some time when you grow stronger and your memory is better we will talk together. Do you remember the winter, long after father went away, that Parson Lane sent me to Fairfield academy to get enough Greek and Latin to make me a school-master?"

"Yes," she answered uncertainly.

"Don't you remember I got a free ride downriver one Friday and came home for Sunday, just to surprise you? And when I got here I found you ill in bed, with Mrs. Mason and Dr. Perry taking care of you. You could not speak, you were so ill, but they told me you had been up in New Hampshire to see your sister, that she had died, and that you had brought back her boy, who was only four years old. That was Rod. I took him into bed with me that night, poor, homesick little fellow, and, as you know, mother he's never left us since."

er of his boy? If so he must have realized to what straits he was subjecting them. Ivory had not forgotten those first few years of grinding poverty, anxiety and suspense. His mother's mind had stood the strain bravely, but it gave way at last; not, however, until that fatal winter journey to New Hampshire, when cold, exposure and fatigue did their worst for her weak body. Religious enthusiast, exalted and impressionable, a natural mystic, she had probably always been, far more so in temperament, indeed, than her husband; but, although she left home on that journey a frail and heartsick woman, she returned a different creature altogether, blurred and confused in mind, with clouded memory and irrational fancies.

She must have given up hope just then, Ivory thought, and her love was so deep that when it was uprooted the soil came with it. Now hope had returned because the cruel memory had faded altogether. She sat by the kitchen window in gentle expectation, watching, always watching.

And this is the way many of Ivory Boynton's evenings were spent, while the heart of him, the five-and-twenty-year-old heart of him, was longing to feel the beat of another heart, a girl's heart only a mile or more away. The ice in Saco water had broken up and the white blocks sailed majestically down toward the sea. Sap was mounting and the elm trees were budding; the trailing arbutus was blossoming in the woods; the robins had come—everything was announcing the spring, yet Ivory saw no changing seasons in his future; nothing but winter, eternal winter there!

CHAPTER IV.

Patience and Impatience.

PATTY had been searching for eggs in the barn chamber and, coming down the ladder from the haymow, spied her father washing the wagon by the wellside near the shed door. Cephas Cole kept store for him at meal hours and whenever trade was unusually brisk, and the Baxter yard was so happily situated that Old Foxy could watch both house and store.

There never was a good time to ask Deacon Baxter a favor, therefore this moment would serve as well as any other; so, approaching him near enough to be heard through the rubbing and splashing, but no nearer than was necessary, Patty said:

"Father, can I go up to Ellen Wilson's this afternoon and stay for tea? I won't start till I've done a good day's work, and I'll come home early."

"What do you want to go gallivantin' to the neighbors for? I never saw anything like the girls nowadays—highly tighty, dauntin', tralpsin', trillin' trollops, ev'ry one of 'em, that's what they are, and Ellen Wilson's one of the triffin'est. You're old enough now to stay to home where you belong and make an effort to earn your board and clothes, which you can't, even if you try."

Spunk, real Simon pure spunk, started somewhere in Patty and coursed through her blood like wine.

"If a girl's old enough to stay at home and work I should think she was old enough to go out and play once in awhile." Patty was still too timid to make this remark more than a courteous suggestion, so far as its tone was concerned.

"Don't answer me back! You're full of new tricks, and you've got to stop 'em right where you are or there'll be trouble. You were whistlin' that new repien, with money honey sweet voice eyes that blazed.

"Well, I hope they'll never hear thing worse," replied her father, ing a bucket of water over the wagon wheels.

"They couldn't!" These words never spoken aloud; but, oh, how longed to shout them with a voice as she walked away in silence, her majestic gait showing, hoped, how she resented the outcome of the interview.

"I've stood up to father!" she claimed triumphantly as she entered the kitchen and set down her bowl of eggs on the table. "I'm up to him and answered him three times!"

Waitstill was busy with her day morning cooking, but she turned in alarm.

"Patty, what have you said done? Tell me quickly!"

"I 'argified,' but it didn't do good. He won't let me go to Ellen party."

Waitstill wiped her floury hand put them on her sister's shoulders.

"Hear what I say, Patty: You not argue with father, whatever says. We don't love him and so isn't the right respect in our hearts but at least there can be respect in manners."

"I don't believe I can go on for holding in, Waitstill!" Patty wailed.

"Yes, you can, I have!"

"You're different, Waitstill."

"I wasn't so different at sixteen that's five years ago, and I've got trol of my tongue and my temper then. Sometime, perhaps, when I a grievance too great to be borne, sometime when you are from here in a home of your own shall speak out to father; just a my heart of all the disappointment and bitterness and rebellion. Somebody ought to tell him the truth perhaps it will be me!"

Waitstill bent over the girl as she flung herself down beside the and smoothed her shoulder gently.

"There, there, dear! It isn't like gay little sister to cry. What is matter with you today, Patty?"

"I suppose it's the spring," she wiping her eyes with her apron smiling through her tears. "Perhaps I need a dose of sulphur and molasses."

"Don't you feel well as common?"

"Well? I feel too well! I feel I was a young colt shut up in a stable. I want to kick up my heels, ter the door down and get out into pasture. It's no use talking. I can't go on living without a bit of pleasure and I can't go on being content even for your sake. If it were for you I'd run away as Job did, I never believed Moses slipped or logs. I'm sure he threw himself the river, and so should I if I had courage!"

"Stop, Patty, stop, dear! You have your bit of pasture at least. do some of your indoor tasks for and you shall put on your sunbon and go out and dig the dand greens for dinner. Take the brook knife and a milk pan, and don't t in so much earth with them as you last time. Dry your eyes and look the green things growing. Remember how young you are and how many years are ahead of you. Go and dear."

Waitstill went about her work rather a heavy heart. Was life going to be more rather than less difficult now that Patty was growing? Would she be able to do her duty by father and sister and keep peace

"Was a Sabbath school hymn that she whistling?" This with a creditation of defiance.

"They couldn't!" These words were spoken aloud; but, oh, how Patty tried to shout them with a clarion voice as she walked away in perfect peace, her majestic gait showing, she had, how she resented the outcome of the interview.

the household, as she had vowed in her secret heart always to do? She paused every now and then to look out of the window and wave an encouraging hand to Patty. The girl's bonnet was off, and her uncovered head blazed like red gold in the sunlight. The short young grass was dotted with dandelion blooms, some of them already grown to huge disks of yellow, and Patty moved hither and thither, selecting the younger weeds, deftly putting the broken knife under their roots and popping them into the tin pan. Presently—for Deacon Baxter had finished the wagon and gone down the hill to relieve Cephas Cole at the counter—Patty's shrill young whistle floated into the kitchen, but with a mischievous glance at the open window she broke off suddenly and began to sing the words of the hymn with rather more emphasis and gusto than strict piety warranted:

There'll be something in heav-en for chil-dren to do.

None are idle in that bless-ed land. There'll be work for the heart, there'll be work for the mind

And employment for each little hand. There'll be some-thing to do,

There'll be some-thing to do, There'll be some-thing for chil-dren to do!

On that bright, blessed shore Where there's joy evermore

There'll be some-thing for chil-dren to do.

Patty's young existence being full to the brim of labor, this view of heaven never in the least appealed to her, and she rendered the hymn with little sympathy. The main part of the verse was strongly accented by jabs at the unoffending dandelion roots, but when the chorus came she brought out the emphatic syllables by a beat of the broken knife on the milk pan.

This rendition of a Sabbath school classic did not meet Waitstill's ideas of perfect propriety, but she smiled and let it pass, planning some sort of recreation for a stolen half hour of the afternoon. It would have to be a walk through the pasture into the woods to see what had grown since they went there a fortnight ago. Patty loved people better than nature, but failing the one she could put up with the other, for she had a sense of beauty and a pagan love of color. There would be pale hued innocence and blue and white violets in the moist places, thought Waitstill, and they would have them in a china cup on the supper table. No, that would never do, for last time father had knocked them over when he was reaching for the bread and in a silent protest against such foolishness got up from the table and emptied them into the kitchen sink.

"There's a place for everything," he said when he came back, "and the place for flowers is outdoors."

Then in the pine woods there would be, she was sure, Star of Bethlehem, Solomon's Seal, the white spray of ground nuts and bunch berries. Perhaps they could make a bouquet, and Patty would take it across the fields to Mrs. Boynton's door. She need not go in, and thus they would not be disobeying their father's command not to visit that "crazy Boynton woman."

Here Patty came in with a painful of greens, and the sisters sat down in the sunny window to get them ready for the pot.

"I'm calmer," the little rebel allowed. "That's generally the way it turns out with me. I get into a rage, but I can generally sing it off."

"You certainly must have got rid of a good deal of temper this morning by the way your voice sounded."

"Nobody can hear us in this out of the way place. It's easy enough to Patty watched her curiously and was just going to offer a penny for her thoughts when Waitstill suddenly broke the brief silence by saying: "Yes, I am always busy. It's better so, but all the same, Patty, I'm waiting—inside! I don't know for what, but I always feel that I am waiting!"

CHAPTER V.

A Kiss.

"S HALL we have our walk in the woods on the Edgewood side of the river, just for a change, Patty?" suggested her sister.

"The water is so high this year that the river will be splendid. We can gather our flowers in the hill pasture, and then you'll be quite near Mrs. Boynton's and can carry the nosegay there while I come home ahead of you and get supper. I'll take today's eggs to father's store on the way and ask him if he minds our having a little walk. I've an errand at Aunt Abby's that would take me down to the bridge anyway."

"Very well," said Patty somewhat apathetically. "I always like a walk with you, but I don't care what becomes of me this afternoon if I can't go to Ellen's party."

The excursion took place according to Waitstill's plan, and at 4 o'clock she sped back to her night work and preparations for supper, leaving Patty with a great bunch of early wild flowers for Ivory's mother. Patty had left them at the Boyntons' door with Rodman, who was picking up chips and volunteered to take the nosegay into the house at once.

"Won't you step inside?" the boy asked shyly, wishing to be polite, but conscious that visitors from the village very seldom crossed the threshold.

"I'd like to, but I can't this afternoon, thank you. I must run all the way down the hill now or I shan't be in time to supper."

"Do you eat meals together over to your house?" asked the boy.

"We're all three at the table, if that means together."

"We never are. Ivory goes off early and takes lunch in a pail. So do I when I go to school. Aunt Boynton never sits down to eat. She just stands at the window and takes a bite of something now and then. You haven't got any mother, have you?"

"No, Rodman."

"Neither have I, nor any father, nor any relations but Aunt Boynton and Ivory. Ivory is very good to me, and when he's at home I'm never lonesome."

"I wish you could come over and eat with sister and me," said Patty gently. "Perhaps sometime, when my father is away buying goods and we are left alone, you could join us in the woods, and we would have a picnic? We would bring enough for you—all sorts of good things—hard boiled eggs, doughnuts, apple turnovers and bread spread with jelly."

"I'd like it fine!" exclaimed Rodman, his big dark eyes sparkling with anticipation. "I don't have many boys to play with, and I never went to a picnic. Aunt Boynton watches for uncle 'most all the time. She doesn't know he has been away for years and years. When she doesn't watch she prays. Sometimes she wants me to pray with her, but praying don't come easy to me."

"Neither does it to me," said Patty.

"I'm good at marbles and checkers and backgammon and back stumps son my eyes are so swollen up is because I killed our old toad by mistake this morning. I was trying to see if I could swing the scythe so's to help Ivory in haying time. I've only 'raked after,' and I want to begin on mowing soon's I can. Then, somehow or other, the old toad came out from under the steps. I didn't see him, and the scythe hit him square. I cried for an hour, that's what I did, and I don't care who knows it, except I wouldn't like the boys at school to hector me. I've buried the toad out behind the barn, and I hope Ivory'll let me keep the news from Aunt Boynton. She cries enough now without my telling her there's been a death in the family. She set great store by the old toad, and so did all of us."

Waitstill was busy with her Saturday-morning cooking, but she turned alarm.

"I want to kick up my heels, but the door down and get out into the sun. It's no use talking, Waitstill. I can't go on living without a bit of sure and I can't go on being patient even for your sake. Waitstill went about her work with a heavy heart. Was life going to be more rather than less difficult that Patty was growing up? Could she be able to do her duty both to father and sister and keep peace in the garden? There came in with a panful of greens, and the sisters sat down in the sunny window to get them ready for the pot.

"I'm calmer," the little rebel allowed. "That's generally the way it turns out with me. I get into a rage, but I can generally sing it off."

"You certainly must have got rid of a good deal of temper this morning by the way your voice sounded."

"Nobody can bear us in this out of the way place. It's easy enough to see that the women weren't asked to say anything when the men settled where the houses should be built. The men weren't content to stick them on the top of a high hill or half a mile from the stores, but put them back to the main road, taking due care to cut the sink window where their wives couldn't see anything, even when they were washing dishes."

"I don't know that I ever thought about it in that way." And Waitstill looked out of the window in a brown study, while her hands worked with the dandelion greens. "I've noticed it, but I never supposed the men did it intentionally."

"No, you wouldn't," said Patty, with the pessimism of a woman of ninety, as she stole an admiring glance at her sister. Patty's own face, irregular, piquant, tantalizing, had its peculiar charm, and her brilliant skin and hair so dazzled the masculine beholder that he took note of no small defects. But Waitstill was beautiful—beautiful even in her working dress of purple calico. Her single braid of hair, the Foxwell hair, that in her was bronze and in Patty pale auburn, was wound once around her fine head and made to stand a little as it went across the front. It was a simple, easy, unconscious fashion of her own, quite different from anything done by other women in her time and place, and it just suited her dignity and serenity. It looked like a coronet, but it was the way she carried her head that gave you the fancy, there were such spirit and pride in the poise of it on the long, graceful neck. Her eyes were as clear as mountain pools shaded by rushes, and the strength of the face was softened by the sweetness of the mouth.

Patty never let the conversation die out for many seconds at a time, and now she began again: "My sudden rages don't match my name very well; but, of course, mother didn't know how I was going to turn out when she called me Patience, for I was nothing but a squirming little bald, red baby. But my name really is too ridiculous when you think about it."

Waitstill laughed as she said: "It didn't take you long to change it. Perhaps Patience was a hard word for a baby to say, but the moment you could talk you said 'Patty wants this' and 'Patty wants that.'"

"Did Patty ever get it? She never has since, that's certain! And look at your name. It's 'Waitstill,' yet you never stop a moment. When you're not in the shed or barn or chicken house or kitchen or attic or garden patch you are working in the Sunday school or the choir."

It seemed as if Waitstill did not intend to answer this arraignment of her activities. She rose and crossed the room to put the pan of greens in the sink, preparing to wash them. Taking the long handled dipper from the nail, she paused a moment before plunging it into the water pail; paused, and leaning her elbow on a corner of the shelf over the sink, looked steadfastly out into the orchard.

his big dark eyes sparkling with anticipation. "I don't have many boys to play with, and I never went to a picnic. Aunt Boynton watches for uncle 'most all the time. She doesn't know he has been away for years and years. When she doesn't watch she prays. Sometimes she wants me to pray with her, but praying don't come easy to me."

"Neither does it to me," said Patty.

"I'm good at marbles and checkers and backgammon and jack straws, though."

"So am I," said Patty, laughing; "so we should be good friends. I'll try to get a chance to see you soon again, but perhaps I can't; I'm a good deal tied at home."

DAIRY WISDOM.

Records in the dairy are the guideposts which point the way to success.

It is better to raise your own calves, for then you know what you have. To buy up heifer calves promiscuously is an uncertain business.

Give the cow a chance. She is usually better than you think. "Blood will tell," but so will care and the proper feed.

Any check in a calf's growth is a loss to the owner. A stunted calf will never make as valuable a cow as its inheritance would certainly warrant.

Vitality is a very important characteristic in the dairy cow or any other farm animal. If weak along this line the best returns cannot be expected.

SOME SILO ADVANTAGES.

Modern Farmers Agree as to the Benefits of Silage as a Feed.

The silo has proved itself to be highly profitable in many ways over different sections of the country. Its means for increasing the supply of feed for the stock has been fully tested, writes an Illinois farmer in the Iowa Homestead. Silage is not only a benefit to the dairy farmer, but the general farmer as well, for all stock will eat some well kept silage, and it is much relished by them.

A silo should by all means be erected on all farms where live stock is to be kept. The silo not only saves all the crop for feeding purposes, but saves much labor in feeding.

One should never think of keeping a dairy herd through the winter without silage as a part of their ration. When cows are properly cared for in winter, more profit may be derived from them than during the summer months, as the silage for cream and butter are always better, besides the milk being easier to handle and keep fresh. When cows are fed a goodly supply of well kept silage in connection with their other feed it is almost equal to the pasture in summer, giving the butter a rich color and good flavor.

Some do not build silos owing to the cost. It is true the first cost seems great, but the money and labor saved in utilizing every stalk of corn will pay

FARMING AND HEALTH.

Health is worth much to people of any occupation, but no occupation is more dependent upon it than farming. Farming requires physical labor of considerable endurance, notwithstanding the extensive use of improved implements and machines. Successful farming also requires mental activity. Good health means physical and mental vigor, without which farming cannot succeed. With these facts before us let us conserve our strength and take every known precaution to prevent disease.—Farm and Ranch.

THE EARNINGS OF FARMERS.

Many Do Not Correctly Estimate Their Incomes.

The money that a farmer takes in each year above his cash expenses is an income from two distinct sources—first, interest on money invested in the farm business; second, wages for the labor and managing ability of the farmer and his family.

Many people who think that they are financially successful as farmers are actually living on the interest from the money invested in the farm business and on the labor of their sons and daughters. For his own work the farmer frequently receives only a fraction of a hired man's wages. The reason is that when one has his farm clear of debt he often forgets that interest on the investment is a receipt, similar to the interest that one receives on a deposit in a savings bank, for the farm could be sold and the money invested so as to secure 4 to 6 per cent interest with no work on the part of the farmer. A farmer whose farm is mortgaged for a good portion of its value is not at all likely to forget that interest on the investment is a part of the year's expense. If he does the owner of the mortgage will remind him of it upon each interest day.

A farmer who has a farm and equipment worth $16,000 could secure an income of $800 per year by selling his farm and putting the money at interest, assuming that he could invest the proceeds so as to secure 5 per cent interest.—W. L. Cavert, Assistant Agriculturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

RARE POSTAGE STAMPS

ONE CENT BRITISH GUIANA IS VALUED AT $10,000.

There Is Only One Known Copy of 1856 Issue In Existence—"Post-office Mauritius" Comes Next at $7,250 and King George Has the Most Perfect Copy—Baker's Boy Engraved a Stamp.

Not a little of the fascination which the study and collecting of postage stamps holds for enthusiasts lies in the fact that the story of their origin and subsequent history is, in many cases, of an exceedingly romantic character.

The single known copy of the rarest stamp in the world, valued at $2,000—the one-cent British Guiana issued in 1856—was discovered by a young collector in the colony amongst some old family papers stored away in an attic. Knowing nothing of its scarcity, and not being favorably impressed by its appearance, he sold it to another collector for a trifling sum, the purchaser being also ignorant of his great bargain. Ultimately it found its way to Europe and now reposes in the collection of M. Philippe de la Renotiere, of Paris, who purchased it many years ago.

The value of $1,450 is placed upon the famous "Postoffice Mauritius" stamp, which was crudely engraved on a small copper plate by a local watchmaker of Port Louis, and issued on September 21, 1847. A total of only 500 copies of each of these stamps were tediously printed off one at a time from the plate, and the majority of these were used on invitations to a ball sent out by Lady Gomm, wife of the governor of the colony.

It was not until nearly twenty years after their issue that the first two copies of these rarities were brought to light by a young stamp collector of Bordeaux. The most perfect used copy of the 2d. Post-office Mauritius was sold by auction in 1904 for no less a sum than $1,450, and is now included in King George's collection.

To the story of the watchmaker who designed this stamp may be added that of the baker's boy who engraved a stamp of the Republic of Corrientes, now forming part of the Argentine Federation. In 1855 it was decided by the authorities to issue stamps, but they could find no engraver to cut the die or prepare the plates. While one of the officials was discussing the situation with the head of the state printing office on his veranda one morning a baker's boy arrived with the daily supply of bread, and, overhearing the conversation, volunteered to undertake the work, stating that before emigrating to South America he had been apprenticed to an engraver in Italy. Ultimately the boy was given the work to do, and he turned out a stamp which, although crude, served for all the postage stamps issued in Corrientes from 1855 to 1880.

Probably few people are aware of the fact, by the way, that His Majesty (then Prince of Wales) was responsible for the design of the 1903 postage stamps of Canada, universally acknowledged to be the most artistic stamps of the last reign, says The Strand Magazine. About the time of the late King's Coronation the Postmaster-General of Canada, then on a visit to England, took the opportunity of consulting his royal highness on the subject of the proposed new issue of postage

HOW TO CAN CORN

Uncle Sam Tells of Satisfactory Ways to Put It Up.

SELLING SURPLUS PRODUCE

Home Prepared Vegetables Bring Good Price on the Market—Economize in Handling Large Quantities of It at Once.

The United States department of agriculture gives some well tested reasonable suggestions for putting corn.

These recipes have been used in connection with the five different types of canning devices, and the corn has put up in all types of containers, as glass, screw and suction top and tin cans. The method employed is the cold pack method.

Select sweet corn ears of uniform size and proper ripeness. If too the corn will color while processing (Processing is the canning term sterilization or cooking.) If not enough much of the food value is in cutting the corn from the cob, either glass jars or tin cans. For kitchen purposes and greater safety, transportation use tin cans.

Remove husk, silk, shank, tips injured or defective places. Boil corn in boiling water or steam for from five to ten minutes. The depends upon the stage of ripe size of ears and degree of fresh. Remove the ears and plunge qu in cold water.

Cooking the Corn.

Cut the corn from the cob with sharp, thin bladed knife. Pack in glass jar or tin can; add salt and a level teaspoonful of salt to quart or No. 3 can. Place rubber glass jar top in place, not tight using tin, solder cap in place on vent hole or seal completely. Process the corn from 180 to 240 minutes the homemade or hot water corn bath outfits; for one and one hours in the water seal outfits; for hour when using from five to pounds of steam pressure, with steam pressure canning devices forty minutes when using the altitude steam pressure cooker outfit. After processing remove the jars, tighten covers, invert to test the joints cool.

If using tin inspect the soldered caps for pinhole leaks. Repair leaks, allow to stand for twenty hours. If cans are still bulging ends at the end of this time one of things is true—the pack is too full some live spores are still left in can. If the latter replace in sterilizer and process the second time from ten minutes to one hour.

Canning Sweet Corn on the Cold

Blanch in boiling water five to ten minutes, according to ripeness, and freshness; plunge quickly in water. Pack, alternating butts tips; add just a little boiling water one level teaspoonful of salt to quart. Place rubber and top and

...ment may be derived from them during the summer months, as the prices for cream and butter are always better, besides the milk being easier to handle and keep fresh. When cows are fed a good supply of well kept silage in connection with their other feed it is almost equal to the pasturage in summer, giving the butter a rich and good flavor.

Some do not build silos owing to the cost. It is true the first cost seems great, but the money and labor saved in milking every stalk of corn will pay for the cost of the silo in a few years. Farmers are waking up to the fact that they need a silo in their business and can't afford to let the cost hold them off from so profitable an investment.

Keep Flies Out of the Barn.

Flies are hard on all animals, but the colt seems to suffer most from the pests. A dark stable will make the colt bigger, says the Farm and Fireside. And if there are one or two light windows to draw the flies and plenty of fly paper to catch them the colt will do still better. Good wire screen traps and some sort of evil smelling lure for the flies will be just as good. And why stop with protecting colts? Why not the cows, the horses and the entire barn premises? Traps are not expensive. As for the house, we are addressing progressive people and will not insult them by assuming that they are neglecting the protections of screens, traps, sticky paper and the other aids to the fly swatter.

A Monstrosity Among Newspapers.

Those who object to the widespread newspaper may see the apotheosis of their bete noire in the museum at Aix-la-Chapelle, the only existing copy of the Illuminated Quadruple Constellation, published in New York in 1839. Happily this monstrosity did not survive the first issue, for its pages measure eight and one-half feet by six feet, and each contains thirteen columns forty-eight inches long.

By way of comparison it may be mentioned that the smallest newspaper in the world is the Mexican El Telegrama, with pages four inches square. —London Chronicle.

Stoats Hunt in Packs.

In some years stoats appear to be more numerous than in others, and they are seen not in ones and twos, but in dozens, hunting together in small packs. Stoats will hunt together from scent and in full cry like a pack of hounds, one always keeping the line and followed closely by the others. This sight has been recorded by different observers who have also seen weasels hunting in the same way.

Valuable Services.

"I have indeed done a service," the orator declared. "I have given the people cause to think."

"That was something at least."

"Yes, oh, yes. But I have done a further service. I have told them just how to think."

Silent Service.

"Don't you like silent service in the house?"

"Sure. That's one reason we put in a dumb waiter."

Making Connections.

Knicker—Life is hard. Bocker—Yes. By the time your mother stops forbidding you to eat jam the doctor begins. —New York Sun.

NO DANGER OF UPSETTING.

A hoop from a cask has about the right level to it to fit the flare of the pail. If the seat is made long there is little danger of having the pail tilt it up when full, but if the handle of the pail is grasped when the milking is over no danger of upsetting need be feared in any event.—Orange Judd Farmer.

New Cotton in America.

Arizona cotton growers must be feeling jubilant. They have produced about 2,000 bales of Egyptian long staple cotton—a new product in America. They have succeeded in selling at a price which nets the growers in the Salt River valley 21½ cents a pound. The farmers there expect to grow only the one variety henceforth.—Farm and Fireside.

LAW NOTES FOR FARMERS

Do not rely upon the oral guarantee of any agent who sells you something as to its quality or condition. Such guarantee will not be binding on the principal unless it was duly authorized, and this is often very difficult to prove.

Do not depend upon a mere oral guarantee in any case. It is always difficult to prove, and witnesses are generally forgetful and indifferent. It is easy to put a guarantee in writing which fixes the responsibility without other evidence.

Do not depend upon the guarantee of a firm or company as to the condition or quality of things sold to you unless you are satisfied that the firm or company is financially responsible and that its general course of dealing is honorable. The same caution is applicable when dealing with private individuals.

Do not be persuaded against your better judgment to sign a note as surety for a friend. In the language of Solomon, "A man void of understanding striketh hands and becometh surety in the presence of his friend." And again, "He that is surety for a stranger shall smart for it, and he that hateth suretyship is sure."

Do not give your promissory note to a stranger for something which he promises to deliver to you in future. He may be neither honest nor financially responsible. He may sell your note before it is due for a valuable consideration and fail to deliver the goods, and you will nevertheless be liable for the amount of the note.

stamps issued in connection with the coronation of King Peter I. in 1904.

Probably few people are aware of the fact, by the way, that His Majesty (then Prince of Wales) was responsible for the design of the 1903 postage stamps of Canada, universally acknowledged to be the most artistic stamps of the last reign, says The Strand Magazine. About the time of the late King's Coronation the Postmaster-General of Canada, then on a visit to England, took the opportunity of consulting his royal highness on the subject of the proposed new issue of postage stamps for the Dominion. The prince at once took the keenest interest in the work, designed the stamp in conjunction with a member of the Royal Philatelic Society, and superintended the preparation of the "master die" in England. The Edwardian stamps of Canada can therefore lay claim to the distinction of being designed by a king.

A stamp round which centres one of the foulest political crimes of modern history is the so-called "death-mask stamp" of Serbia, issued in 1904 to commemorate the accession of King Peter I. The dastardly assassination of King Alexander and his Queen Draga by military officers on June 11, 1903, wiped out the Obrenovitch dynasty from the throne of Serbia, and paved the way for the present king.

After the tragedy one of the most famous of French stamp engravers was commissioned to prepare a stamp from a design by a Serbian artist, showing on a single plaque the twin profiles of Kara Georg, the founder of the dynasty which bears his name, and King Peter, his descendant.

The stamps were issued at the time of King Peter's coronation in 1904, and hardly had they got into circulation when it was discovered that the "death-mask" of the late King Alexander had been skillfully and subtly introduced into the design, and on the stamp being inverted could be plainly traced in the reversed features of the two heads.

This discovery at once caused an outcry, the stratagem being ascribed to ex-Queen Nathalie, mother of the murdered king, and her supporters, but all connivance in the plot was indignantly repudiated by the engraver, and the mystery of this extraordinary happening has never been satisfactorily cleared up.

Remove jars, tighten covers, invert and cool. (Heat up for table use in steamer, in water. If corn seems flat or watery, it has been overcooked or allowed to stand in too much water.

Use one or two quart glass jars not needed for other products. Quart jars will hold two ears; two quart jars will hold from three to five ears, according to size of ear. Do not use large ears. Half gallon or gallon cans with large openings should be used in the canning of ear corn. Wide glass jars are not available. (Long tin cans will hold from six to twelve ears. THE SUMMER COIFFURE.

Its Beauty Depends on a Fastidious Care of the Hair.

The hair is apt to become musty and matted in very little time during the hot weather unless it is carefully treated. The reason is apparent. The scalp perspires more freely than any other part of the body. During the hot weather all rats, switches, curls and puffs should be put into storage. The present style of hairdressing has no need of false hair anyway.

Even if the style called for much and elaborately dressed hair it would be foolish to follow fashion's call, at least during summer months, for there is nothing quite so harmful to the head as false hair in hot weather. It is very heating, causing incessant perspiration; then it shuts out all air which might reach the scalp under ordinary circumstances.

A woman should never omit the nightly brushing and airing. Before retiring she should let down her hair and sit in the open windows where the wind can blow away every vestige of the odor of perspiration. Ten minutes' airing is not too much and can be easily spared.

Once every week during the hot weather the hair should be shampooed. If the scalp is inclined to be oily it may be necessary to give the head a dry shampoo during the week. A massage with orris root will work wonders. The orris root should be well rubbed into the scalp so that every bit

LIFE IN THE LONG AGO.

When Huts Were Homes and Beds Were Shakedown of Straw.

For centuries the common people of England made their home in wooden huts of one room. When a family increased in numbers or wealth another hut was built beside it, or, rather, a lean-to was added and then another and another, as need required.

Sometimes they followed a straight line. At other times they were built out from the central hut at various angles. The roofs of these huts were thatched. An opening was left in the center for the smoke to escape. The fire was always built in a hollow in the center of the room. Beds were made of straw. Often they were merely shakedown in the corner. Occasionally the straw was held in a little frame resembling the ribs of a ship.

Houses built by Saxon knights were much more pretentious. They were big halls, like the Roman atrium, with a lofty roof thatched with slate or wood shingles. The floor was of hard clay. In the middle was a great fire of dry wood. The thin, acrid smoke from the fire escaped through an opening in the roof directly above the hearth.

Round the fire were long benches, on which hearthsmen and visitors sat when not fighting or at work, and talked and drank the hours through. The tables were long boards on trestles. At night the floor was strewn with straw, and, like the less prosperous folk, host and visitors slept together. — Youth's Companion.

CURIOUS MEXICAN TREES.

One Whose Fruit Is the Counterpart of the Green Parrot.

Mexico probably has a greater range of remarkable vegetation than any other country in the world. The parrot fruit tree produces an odd shaped fruit, bearing a close resemblance to green parakeets. When the parakeet is frightened it makes a dash for the parrot tree, where it assumes a position which makes it look like the fruit itself. So close is the resemblance that their enemies, the hawks, occasionally fly by a tree on which a dozen or more of these birds are sitting, apparently unaware of their presence.

Another remarkable tree is the arbol de dinamite—dynamite tree—whose fruit, if kept in a warm place, bursts with considerable force and a loud report, scattering its flat seeds to a surprising distance.

One of the most interesting fruits in Mexico is known as the melon zapote, or papaya. It contains considerable pepsin, which reacts against both acid and alkaline conditions of the stomach, and it is said that a diet which includes papaya precludes dyspepsia. Both the fruit and the leaves possess the singular property of rendering tough meat tender. When the pulp of the fruit is rubbed over a piece of tough meat the juice attacks the fiber and softens it.—National Geographic Magazine.

Mexico's National Pawnshop.

One of the most remarkable institutions in the City of Mexico is the Monte de Piedad, or national pawnshop. The monte is one of the oldest buildings in the capital, having been built for the private residence of Cortes in 1520, and it has been fortunate enough to escape the hands of restorers. It was acquired in 1744 by Count de Regla Terreros, who laid out $300,000 in

HIS BED IN HIS POCKET.

London Man Has Invented Many Concentrated Comforts.

Property owners and house agents will regard with an unfriendly eye the wonderful inventions of Mr. T. H. Holding, who will demonstrate in London shortly how he carries his bed in one pocket and his house in another. Chatting with the writer a few days ago, Mr. Holding, who is now in his seventieth year, and who has spent the greater part of his life under canvas, remarked that all a man needs to protect him from the weather is a 12oz. silk tent—which he drew from his pocket, and which was equipped with a sort of fishing-rod pole and a set of twelve aluminum pegs.

In this tent it is possible for two to sleep quite cosily, although it folds up into a package measuring only 11 inches by 4 inches, while among other innumerable objects in the way of concentrated comfort Mr. Holding has invented pillows that weigh next to nothing and are blown up like cycle tyres, pots and pans that vanish when they are not wanted, toilet apparatus weighing only a few ounces, and so on.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Holding contends that the whole weight of the outfit for a man who decides on the simple life camping out need not exceed 7 pounds, and this would in-

Half gallon or gallon tins with large openings should be used in the canning of ear corn when the glass jars are not available. Gallon tin cans will hold from six to twelve ears. They should be graded to uniform size.

In high altitudes, 4,000 feet and over, will be necessary to increase the time requirements in the canning of sweet corn about 25 per cent, if water boils at about 202 degrees F. and even less.

Bird Baths For the Garden.

Some of the bird baths are very attractive, and no garden is complete without one of these useful little ornaments.

SUMMER BEAUTY DON'TS.

Don't let a permanent frown settle upon your brows through going out into the blazing sun without a sunshade. Try to cultivate pleasant thoughts also. It makes all the difference to the expression of your face.

Don't wear a veil that is worn and dirty. You cannot keep the skin of your face clean if you do.

Don't forget that plenty of fruit and green vegetables will help to keep you fit.

Don't go out without gloves if your hands are liable to freckle and sunburn.

Don't wear short sleeves if your arms get easily scorched.

Don't forget that sunshine is very good for the hair and make a point of sitting in your garden without a hat whenever you can.

returning sue should set down her hair and sit in the open windows where the wind can blow away every vestige of the odor of perspiration. Ten minutes' airing is not too much and can be easily spared.

Once every week during the hot weather the hair should be shampooed. If the scalp is inclined to be oily it may be necessary to give the head a dry shampoo during the week. A massage with orris root will work wonders. The orris root should be well rubbed into the scalp so that every bit of oil and moisture is absorbed. Then the powder is all brushed out, leaving the hair as fluffy as after a washing.

The tango cap of knotted gold cord illustrated here is worn over a sheer foundation. The bandeau of tulle caught by the pearl ornaments is also an attractive ornament for evening wear.

Moire Shopping Bags.

White moire bags bound in gilt have an outside handkerchief pocket. Both black and white moire shopping bags are fitted with vanity fixings and have a small double purse and single strap handle. Fancy silk bags now may carry a bottle of rare perfume. Shopping bags of silk Roman stripes have a center of shirred black satin or moire.

Hungarian Ware.

The new Hungarian ware with its vivid colors is effective with willow furniture. This ware is made by the peasants. It is of nondescript color, not white nor yellow. The garish decorations are of flowers and garlands in pinks and greens.

CULINARY KINKS.

It is said beef may be kept for months if immersed in sour milk. The lactic acid in the milk kills the germs of putrefaction.

When boiling green peas add a lettuce leaf and a tablespoonful of sugar. They will retain their color and have a much better flavor.

Peas may be cooked in the pods. Wash them and drop them in hot salted water. When the peas cook the pods will burst open, the peas be released and the pods rise to the top of the water.

No matter how much dripping is used, fish when being fried is very apt to stick to the pan bottom. To prevent this, before using your pan put a tablespoonful of dry salt into it and rub well all over with grease proof paper.

Mexico's National Pawnshop.

One of the most remarkable institutions in the City of Mexico is the Monte de Piedad, or national pawnshop. The monte is one of the oldest buildings in the capital, having been built for the private residence of Cortes in 1520, and it has been fortunate enough to escape the hands of restorers. It was acquired in 1744 by Count de Regla Terreros, who laid out $300,000 in organizing the Monte de Piedad, with the idea of saving the needy from the usury of the ordinary pawnbroker. Its success is attested by its long history, and Mexicans today can get one-third value on their goods at a rate of interest seldom exceeding 3 per cent per annum. If any one fails to keep up his payments the deposited goods are sold, and any balance over the sum advanced is handed to the depositor.

Bungalow Lamps.

The pagoda lamp, which is just what its name suggests, has a narrow supporting stand with a shade made of wicker tiers that are modeled exactly upon the pagoda motif. There are futurist lamps, too, giving just the suggestion of an outline, the skeleton, as it were, of the lamp, in wicker. These ought to be lined with silks of heavy futurist colors.

Thirsty Babies.

A baby's thirst is not satisfied by its diet of milk. He should be given clean, cool water regularly every day.

Bofled water cooled and given between feedings will often aid digestion and quiet restlessness.

Regular hours, proper food and long hours of sleep are necessary to a healthy infant.

When Cream Is Sour.

When the thunderstorm has unexpectedly turned the cream for the coffee so that the sweet flavor is gone pour it into a bowl, add a pinch of soda and beat a moment or two with an egg beater. Then the cream will be frothy and will not curdle in the coffee, and the bit of soda will not taste.

A Picnic Dainty.

A cooling addition to the picnic lunch box is a cucumber. This can be carried easily and when pared and cut into sections and eaten with the salt and pepper brought for the hard boiled eggs is very refreshing. Even the skin may be utilized, for if no water is available the face and hands may be cooled by rubbing with the inside of the rind.

NATURE BOOKS.

In furnishing the country house "nature books" should not be forgotten. On a beautiful night the stars force themselves on the attention of the most careless and unromantic, and it is pleasing to find near at hand a little book giving some simple information about astronomy.

Again, when the garden is full of flowers with which others are familiar, how convenient for the ignorant guests to find a simple little text book on botany lying on the veranda table. A book about birds is indispensable for nearly every one now wants to know the birds better.

fold up into a package measuring only 11 inches by 4 inches, while among other innumerable objects in the way of concentrated comfort Mr. Holding has invented pillows that weigh next to nothing and are blown up like cycle tyres, pots and pans that vanish when they are not wanted, toilet apparatus weighing only a few ounces, and so on.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Holding contends that the whole weight of the outfit for a man who decides on the simple life camping out need not exceed 7 pounds, and this would include cooking, porridge, and frying pans, a stove, water-bucket for two gallons, a hair-brush, comb, and looking-glass, a set of bags for carrying oatmeal, bread, tea, and coffee, and several other minor items. The stove is a tiny oil affair, weighing just over a pound, but capable of dealing efficiently with a rabbit or a beef-steak, while the water-bucket can be tucked into a space no bigger than your fist.

"It is wonderful," said Mr. Holding, "what a little ingenuity can do."

"But such an outfit would scarcely be suitable for bad weather, Mr. Holding."

"Pooh!" remarked this veteran, whose sturdiness would arouse the envy of a man forty years younger; "weather is a matter of complete indifference to a man used to the simple life. In the shelter of my tiny tent I can laugh at rain, and have endured as much as 22 degrees of frost, and can now regard snow with composure."—London Tit-Bits.

Ancient Theatricals.

The "Agamemnon" of Aeschylus was first produced at Athens in 458 B.C. with the other plays of the great Oresteian tetralogy. The official record of the year, which has been discovered, runs—"Tragedy: Choregus Xenocles of Aphidna; Poet, Aeschylus." So we see that the modern order of precedence—"So-and-so presents a new play by A. N. Other"—is ancient enough, for the choregus was merely a wealthy citizen who provided and paid for the chorus and a room for rehearsals, and nobody remembers Xenocles of Aphidna to-day. But there was one difference in ancient Athens. The leading actor's name did not appear in the record.—London Chronicle.

Some English!

From a Japanese guide book for English tourists comes this alluring description:

"In Hakone draft of pure air suspends no poisonous mixture and always cleanses the defilement of our spirit. During the winter the coldness robs up all pleasure from our hands, but at the summer month they are set free. Moonlight on the sky shivers quartz luster over ripples of the lake. The cuckoo singing near by plays on a harp, and the far viewing of light shaded mountains may be joyfully looked at through wide unobstructed space of the sea."

A Story For Papa.

There is a moral in this little story of child life.

"Mamma," asked little three-year-old Freddie, "are we going to heaven some day?"

"Yes, dear; I fervently hope so," was the reply.

"I wish papa could go, too," continued the little fellow.

"Well, and don't you think he will?" asked his mother.

"Oh, no," replied Freddie; "he could not leave his business!"

Daughters of the Empire.

As in the minds of some few people, some misunderstanding seems to have existed as to the purport of the appeal made in last week's Express, as to the raising of funds for the Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross work being carried on through the Daughters of the Empire. I wish to state most emphatically that no criticism was therein offered of any individual body of workers or society—but the statement was merely made of the lines upon which the Daughters of the Empire and those working them, desired to raise funds for the purchase of materials to be converted into articles of use and comfort for our soldiers and sailors, and to emphasize the fact that we are not seeking to make a money contribution, also to set a standard in method and work for the body of workers above referred to.

It is a matter of regret to me that an over-sight was made last week in not signing the appeal, though the authorship of the same could hardly be doubted. The names of the secretary and treasurer were simply given for the information of the public.

Our friends have made most generous responses to our appeal, both in funds, in work and in useful articles, particulars of which will be given next week, as we are not asking for extra space now owing to the Rize Lists of the County Fair, which our papers are publishing this week.

A Contribution.

With regard to the great crisis we are now called upon to face it is of the greatest importance that we should grasp this opportunity of showing our gratitude towards the soldiers of our B-loved King, who have volunteered to fight against the evil motives of the German Military Organization. Let us then, one and all, realize to the greatest extent of our understanding, that we are fighting with the moral forces of right on our side. We are fighting against an evil organization, which is the enemy of truth, freedom, and honour, and let us all further realize that right is might. On behalf of the L. O. L., No. 358, we ask the Red Cross Society, to accept this twenty-five dollars, hoping all societies will do likewise.

The Prize Winner.

J. R. Spearman, Phc., the man who saves you money on Drug Store goods as The Napanee Drug Company has much pleasure in announcing that the special prize of $6.00 value of Ultramarine Creme Marquise to the neatest dressed and best looking young lady on the grounds has been awarded to Mlle. Helen Dusome, a Toronto young lady 22 years of age, light brown hair, blue eyes, weight 100 pounds, height 5 feet, 8 inches, and without question, the neatest dressed young lady on the grounds. Dressed in strictly Parisian style—before the war styles. Mlle. Helen was greatly surprised, but pleasantly so, upon receiving the prize and says she has been highly honored by the judge, and the Lennox County Fair Association in particular. She will always have a warm place in her heart for the Lennox County FAIR people. Mlle. Helen Dusome is a Russian-French lady, speaking three languages. Her photo will be published later in the County papers. There were seventeen entries for this specialty, but only fourteen appeared on the grounds. The judge begs to state it was the most difficult thing he was ever called upon to decide, from the fact that seven others stood very close to the prize.

Good Times Ahead

The sudden breaking out of war caused many to "run to cover." Like the chicken on whom the rose leaf fell, some of us became a prey to fear and were ready to declare "the sky is falling."

Now our vision is clearing, our alarm has fled, we have recovered our poise and our courage. We are seeing, also, our opportunity. Swiftly and almost overwhelmingly has come to us the perception of the fact that the competition of Continental Europe has been taken away. We are faced with a condition and an opportunity both tending to our advantage as a country of industry, agriculture and trade. Good times are ahead, if Canada and Canadians see and seize the present opportunity for enlarging their industries and trading.

We must be careful. We must have courage.

of made garments, it has been deemed advisable by the Napanee Branch to stop for a time the giving out of material.

The response to the Society's request for workers has been most gratifying, and if at a later date another appeal for work should be made, we are sure every one will be anxious to help.

The present supply of material is exhausted. All ladies having work at home are requested to return the same completed not later than Saturday, Sept. 20th.

The Red Cross Depot in the Town Hall will be open Thursday, Sept. 24th from 2 to 5 p.m., and Saturday, Sept.
26th from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 2 to 5 p.m., for return of work and for any further donations.

The thanks of the Society are due to all those who helped to make our Flag Days in Tamworth, Centerville and Napanee so successful. Nearly six hundred dollars being raised in that way.

The garments and hospital supplies when completed will be forwarded to Toronto, the headquarters of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and from there will be shipped to England to be used in the hospitals which are caring for the wounded soldiers.
